Oscar Winheld, Bricklayer.
Uncle Sam, Good Fellow.
Run America, Separately.
A Press Unfriendly.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

HE WHO considers himself unfortunate, "paper profits" vanished, "end of liquid assets within sight," let him consider the case of Oscar Winheld, bricklayer, long out of a job, sixty-five years old last Thursday (he is dead now), his spectacles broken, no money to buy others, sight feeble.

He spent Thursday looking for work, and prepared to walk several miles home to Brooklyn. A kind-hearted stranger gave him a "nickel," that he might ride.

THE MAGNIFYING glass of the turnstile cash receiver showed that the nickel was bogus, a "slug," that some use to ride without paying.

The old bricklayer was arrested, locked up. The kind-hearted policeman said:

"Don't worry. You will be all right. The judge will suspend sentence."

Oscar Winheld, believing that he had stood enough, suspended sentence for himself. He was found dead in his cell, hanged with his belt.

YOU SOON may see written above Uncle Sam's door:

"He was a good fellow while he had it."

Your representatives vote 203 to 151 to spend one thousand million dollars to make the farmer happier. He can't get a fair price for his products, and Uncle Sam is going to see that he gets it by paying the difference on such things as wheat, cotton, hogs, tobacco, peanuts, rice, butter-fat.

HOW LONG will Uncle Sam "have it?" He owes twenty-one thousand millions now, all payable in gold, and there is not half as much gold money in the world.

He has been handing out hundreds of millions lavishly, through his Reconstruction Corporation, to banks, railroads and other corporations.

"Gold standard" gentlemen will tell you that the one thing is to avoid "inflation." What name but "inflation" can you give to wholesale printing of gold bonds on yellow paper? In what way is that different from printing greenbacks on green paper?

CHILE AND Brazil plan a "bloc" to fight Europe's tariffs that shut out South American products, while Europe floods South America with manufactured articles. Other South American countries will join the bloc, and this country will consider sympathetically any assistance that can be given to South America.

The two Americas, North and South, can take care of themselves without help from the rest of the world and might well say to Europe, Asia and Africa:

"Consider yourselves the planet Mars, so far as trade goes. You attend to your troubles, consume your own products, we'll do the same."

MONTAIGNE, WISE Frenchman, said:

"Tous les maux de ce monde viennent de l'anerie."

"All the ills of this world come from asininity."

Consider the super-asininity of this richest, most powerful, LEAST INTELLIGENT country, which shipped three million men to Europe, lent ten thousand million dollars to welching European countries, lent privately thirty or forty thousand millions to the same crowd on top of that and now spends its money buying goods in Europe, with twelve million workers idle here.

It is fair and friendly to tell importers of foreign goods that they will do well to dispose of those goods now. Soon it will not be popular to have such goods on hand.

FRIENDS OF Franklin D. Roosevelt complain that the press is critical, not friendly as it should be.

No such complaint comes from Roosevelt, who will soon have on his hands the world's hardest job, including a national debt of twenty-one thousand million dollars, twelve million men out of work, nobody among a hundred and twenty million people with any adequate plan to meet the situation.

Roosevelt has the comforting knowledge that our troubles were not caused by any official or party or class. They are the work of the whole people, who pay no attention to government in prosperity, and in trouble, like a little boy with a stomach full of green apples and ice cream, look pitifully around for some doctor.

Roosevelt has no cure. Not even the sacred name, "Roosevelt" contains a remedy for this situation. He knows it, and will tell the people plainly when the time comes.

SPAIN, LIKE the modernized government of Japan, carries out plans ruthlessly. Antagonism toward the Catholic Church, confiscation of church property, has aroused fear and hatred among the deeply religious peasants.

The same thing happened during the French Revolution.

A little mountain town, Casas Viejas, recently rebelled. Republican police burned the town, swept the streets with machine gun fire, killed many of the inhabitants. The rebellion ends, temporarily.

This happened on the 40,000-acre estate of the Duke of Medina Sidonia, whose ancestor commanded the "invincible armada" so quickly wrecked, in Elizabeth's day. Spain's dukes and grandees have seen their day.

DIPLOMAT FIRES ON GIRL

Body Buried Secretly In Embassy at Moscow

By EDWARD L. DEUSS
International News Service.

BERLIN, Jan. 14.—A true-life drama of illicit love and espionage, culminating in the summary execution of a beautiful blonde dancer and the clandestine burial of her body in the gardens of a foreign embassy in Moscow, was reported in diplomatic advices from the Soviet capital today.

The girl, a Russian ballerina 21 years of age, was reported put to death by Gulam Jelani Khan, charge d'affaires at the Afghan embassy, when he surprised her in the act of rifling his desk of secret papers.

In response to repeated pleas from the girl, the Afghan diplomat finally consented to install her in his apartment.

On the night of the third day of her residence with him, Gugam said he encountered the girl in his private office, catching her red-handed in the act of going through his papers.

The diplomat whipped out a pistol and shot the girl, killing her instantly, the advices said. He then buried her body in the gardens.

FOES DENOUNCE BEER, WINE BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—Constitutionality of the newly drafted Collier-Blaine beer and wine bill was attacked by some of Prohibition's defenders in Congress today despite the expressed confidence of its authors that they have made the measure invulnerable against legal attack.

At the same time, Democratic leaders began a study to determine how much additional revenue could be realized from the expansion of the bill to include wine as well as beer, both with a maximum alcoholic content of 3.05 per cent.

Continued opposition to the bill came from such leading supporters of prohibition as Senator Sheppard, (Dem.) of Texas, who said he would fight it on the ground the bill was still unconstitutional. He declared:

"If it proposes to legalize three per cen beer it is nullification."

Other friends of prohibition, including Senator Borah (Rep.), Idaho, and Robinson (Rep.), Indiana, have indicated they would oppose the new measure.

'NEWSIE' HELD FOR NUMBERS

Bank deposits of $50 to $125 a day were credited today to a newsboy accused in Central Police Court of selling "numbers" in lottery operations. Meyer Braunstein, 24, of 5454 Black street, was held for court on a charge of operating a lottery.

Precinct Detective Jack Dillon testified Braunstein's bank book showed deposits of about $600 in three months and declared he carried $50 cash when arrested. He sells newspapers at Sixth and Liberty avenues, Dillon said.

The newsie was held under $2,500 bail. He denied he was a "numbers seller."

Carl Fowler, 34, of 1643 Forbes street, arraigned before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg on a similar charge, readily admitted he was engaged in the "racket." He also was held for court.

Sleuth Car So Rickety Park Walked Home

Why did District Attorney Andrew T. Park ask for $5,000 in the new budget to purchase new automobiles for the county detectives?

Well, for one reason, the District Attorney walked home from a ride in one of the old ones because he felt a street was safer. He never rode in that one since, he told the Commissioners.

And there is another that refused to climb Federal street in second gear, he said. Of that one he said:

"That is supposed to be a pursuit car."

All his other cars are just as bad, he said. The Commissioners promised to discuss the automobile situation later.

However, Mr. Park has a wealth of adding machines, thanks to the "numbers" racket. Those, he said, could be traded in for much needed typewriters.

COUNTY BUREAU BUDGETS UP FOR CUTS

Controller Attacks Costly Probes as Wasteful

Budget estimates of five more county departments under direct control of the County Commissioners will be scrutinized by the Commissioners today in a short budget session. They will be the Election Bureau, the Bureau of Weights and Measures, the Deed Registry, the Bureau of Accounts and the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes.

No more elective county officials will be summoned to explain their requirements until next week, the Commissioners announced. The District Attorney, the Clerk of Courts and the Controller were heard yesterday, the latter throwing a bombshell into the meeting by charging false economy and the existence of a county spy system.

SALARY CUT POLICY

Only $35,400 has been cut from the budget estimates, which total more than $20,000,000, in the two days of hearings. However, the reduction represents only slashes in office operations and office requirements. The subject of salaries will not come up until all departments have had a chance to

GUNMAN SLAYS GIRL IN STORE

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 14.—(AP.)—While a crowd of customers looked on, a gunman walked into a chain store here today, shot Sally Adams, 25, a clerk, in the head and fled. The young woman died on the way to a hospital.

No attempt to hold up the store was made and detectives said that the shooting was the result of some personal grievance. Employes and witnesses gave chase to the fugitive car and obtained the license number.

SHAKEUP LOOMS IN POLICE FORCE

75 to 100 Men Will Be Shifted Under 'Economy' Plan

A sweeping "reorganization" of the police department, involving between 75 and 100 men from lieutenants down to sergeants, loomed today as Public Safety Director James M. Clark and Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh tackled anew their job of meeting City Council's recent economy program.

The homicide squad of city detectives will be hardest hit, a number of "shifts" being planned there. The proposed "reorganization" is the biggest shakeup in the police department during the administrations of Clark and Walsh.

No dismissals are planned, Director Clark said. Many will be given new posts, however.

The reorganization plans will be announced either January 15 or February 1.

CHINESE HURL BACK JAPS

By JOHN GOETTE
International News Service.

PEIPING, Jan. 14.—Offering stubborn resistance to the advance of Japanese troops on Jehol City, Chinese volunteer troops engaged in a sharp skirmish with enemy forces in the northern part of Jehol province today.

Official reports received by Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, Chinese commander in the North, revealed Japanese troops marching on the capital of the province from Kailu had been thrown back by fierce Chinese resistance in the Tungliao area.

With at least 100,000 Chinese already in Jehol province, and determined to defend it against Japanese aggression at all costs, the Japanese movements were successfuly impeded, according to the reports.

The Chinese defense, it was stated, was aided by the mountainous nature of Northern Jehol province.

The Japanese were said to be unfamiliar with the country and thus were forced to proceed with great caution. Bitter sub-zero weather hampered the movements of both sides.

Jack, Gene End Feud; To See Ring Battle

By JACK DEMPSEY
Former Heavyweight Champion of the World.
(Written expressly for International News Service.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—The Tunney-Dempsey feud is dead.

It died the other night at a third meeting between Gene and myself, the first two having taken place in the ring at Philadelphia in 1926 and at Chicago in 1927. Strangely enough, it wasn't until we got together the other night that we really became acquainted.

This time, there was no million-dollar gate, although some of those who witnessed it represented millions in the bank. It was a "surprise meeting"—at least for Tunney and me—at the home of Roy Howard, the publisher, and as we came suddenly face to face, we did the only natural thing by shaking hands and chatting pleasantly for some minutes.

And so the feud was buried and there were no mourners

'RITZY' PAIR OF ROBBERS IMPRISONS VICTIM

'Lady Customer' Aims Pistol at Storekeeper As Pal 'Frisks' Him

A pretty, stylishly-dressed young woman with a revolver led a gunman companion in a holdup of Louis Spector's fruit store at 1834 Center avenue today and escaped with $28.50 after they had imprisoned Spector in his cellar.

Spector described the "gungirl" as a brunette, 23 to 25 years old, who handled the pearl-handled revolver easily, and kept him covered while the man, scarred on the face and about 30, took the money from his pocket and a cash register. They left 15 cents in the cash box.

MAKES PURCHASE

The woman walked into the store while Spector was preparing to go to the produce markets, and bought a dozen oranges, giving him a $5 bill in payment. When he had given her the change she saw some tomatoes. She said:

"Oh, you have tomatoes. How much are they?"

Spector turned to her and looked down the barrel of her revolver. Her companion appeared, and the woman demanded money. When Spector denied having any, the woman, according to the police report, said:

"Go ahead, frisk him. I'll keep him covered."

LEAVES 15 CENTS

The man drew Spector's purse from his pocket, took $28 it contained, and returned the purse. The cash register contained 65 cents. The robber took a half-dollar.

Spector was forced to enter the cellar through a trap door in the floor. He then heard an automobile leaving in the street. When he attempted to escape, he could not open the door. By rapping on a window, he attracted the attention of a barber next door, and the latter found a bag of potatoes on top of the trap door.

Spector said both the man and woman were exceptionally well-dressed.

NOTED EDUCATORS UPHOLD CITY'S SCHOOL SYSTEM

DECLARE BOARD MERITS PUBLIC CONFIDENCE

Personnel Not Bigger Than Other Cities; Cuts Cited

The Pittsburgh school system and the educational policies of the Board of Public Education have been entirely approved by the committee of nationally-known educators asked by the board for an opinion.

The school administration is commended to the people by the committee as fully deserving confidence.

A committee of 25 citizens has been at work on a study of business and financial policy of the board, and a report is expected soon.

PERSONNEL OF GROUPS

The educators' committee worked for two days in examining conditions in Pittsburgh. It consisted of George D. Strayer, of Columbia University, chairman; Herbert S. Weet, superintendent of schools of Rochester, N. Y.; Charles H. Judd, of the University of Chicago, and John W. Withers, of New York University.

Conclusions which the educators reached about Pittsburgh schools include:

Employes in administration and supervision have been reduced in nuber since 1930.

Each teacher is instructing a larger number of pupils than in 1930.

Pittsburgh is not out of line with other large cities in number of employes or salaries paid.

The course of studies offered is not larger than that of other cities.

Nothing but present economic conditions can justify the savings made by the board in reducing the 1933 budget to the extent of $1,568,755.

These conclusions were reached by the committee appointed at the suggestion of Marcus Aaron, president of the board. He outlined the problem to the committee, and a prepared statement of his presentation to them accompanied the committee's findings.

HITS AT CRITICS

Aaron pointed out that the economic condition is so critical here and elsewhere that if money can be saved for the taxpayer by modifying the curriculum without injury to the children, the committee should suggest how it should be done.

Aaron rapped the critics of the board, saying:

"We have taken the position that the abandonment of certain activities would be detrimental to the children, and even though they were abandoned, no economy could be effected. Some of our critics are well-intentioned, and naturally many are not sufficiently well informed to come to any definite positive conclusion."

He later referred to a report of the Community Research Bureau of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board asking for curtailment of dental and medical clinics, hygiene departments, swimming pools, music lessons, playgrounds, athletic instructors, bands, moving pictures and other "superfluous" activities.

NOT UNESSENTIAL

The educational committee in commenting on this viewpoint said that the teaching of special subjects in high schools tends to lower rather than increase the cost of instruction. It said:

"Moreover, it is a serious mistake to look upon these subjects as non-essential. They are in fact fundamental requirements in modern education."

The committee referred to persons who would restrict the curriculum of the schools to the three R's as "dangerous elements in our society," but admitted there is a grave necessity for economy.

Pittsburgh like other cities, it was shown, has greatly increased the range of services rendered by its schools. The young people themselves demand more types of instruction, it was stated.

Teachers of Pittsburgh were praised for their 10 per cent voluntary reduction in salaries which reduces school expenditures of 1932-33 by about $1,000,000.

reveal their policy of salary retrenchment.

Controller Robert G. Woodside threw a challenge at the Commissioners when he stated he would go back to the salary scale of 1909 if the Commissioners would do likewise. Under the 1909 scale all elective officials received $8,000 a year, excepting the Register of Wills, who was paid $5,000. Woodside said he would take the cut and also equalize salaries for his office force, if promised that the money saved by the cuts would be used to help provide work for unemployed property owners.

Woodside declared the Commissioners were advocating false economy by their costly investigations. He pointed out the cost of the audit being conducted by Main & Co. He said the audit had reached far enough and now was doing the work which regular county employes could perform.

PARK TO CONFER

District Attorney Andrew T. Park said he was ready to confer with the Commissioners on salaries, but that he felt his office did not deserve any reductions. He pointed out his own salary was cut when other officials were increased and that his men were overworked and underpaid.

Clerk of Courts S. J. Topley also stated he would meet with the Commissioners in an effort to adjust salaries.

Judge Sarah Soffel, of County Court, said a salary reduction would be acceptable to her, but added she was not in position to speak for all the County Court judges.

The only big slash made yesterday was that of $21,275 from the estimates of the Department of Juvenile Maintenance. Ten thousand dollars was slashed from the requirements for clothing and an equal amount for the maintenance of juveniles in foster homes.

The Commissioners cut $9,785 from the requirements of the Treasurer; $910 from the Clerk of Courts; $1,060 from Quarter Sessions Court; $1,400 from the Controller; $1,005 from Juvenile Detention Home; $25 from the District Attorney; $75 from the County Detectives, and $860 from their own office requirements.

FARM BILL DUE FOR CHANGES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—Extensive rewriting of the domestic allotment farm relief bill was indicated today in view of assertions from Republican leaders that it could not pass the Senate in its present form.

As approved by the House, the emergency plan for boosting the farmer's cash return on seven chosen commodities to the prewar ratio with industrial products found few outspoken friends among Senators.

Many explained they needed the week-end to study the lengthy measure before reaching a conclusion. But others said without hesitation that the bill would need numerous amendments if it is to pass the Senate. Among them were Senators Watson, of Indiana, Republican leader, and McNary, of Oregon, chairman of the Agricultural Committee.

DENIES BACKING WITHEROW

Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay, president of the Pennsylvania Elections Conference, in a statement last night, asserted that the organization had no official part in the ovation given William P. Witherow when his name was mentioned as an Independent candidate for Mayor during a meeting of the conference Thursday night in the Keystone Athletic Club. The meeting had been called, Lindsay said, to support election law reform bills pending in the State Legislature. He said:

"The Pennsylvania Elections Conference is not interested and cannot be interested in the election of any man to office. No party, faction or political group controls or even leads in directing the conference and, so far as I know, none desire to do so."

Witherow's name was mentioned as a possible candidate for the mayoralty by Councilman Robert Garland.

HUEY LONG NEAR TRIUMPH IN FILIBUSTER

Defeat for Cloture Seen in Fight on Banking Bill

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Senator Huey P. Long, Louisiana's "kingfish," stood on the threshold of victory today in his filibuster against provisions of the Glass banking reform bill.

In a desperate effort to break the filibuster, Senate leaders planned to force a vote on cloture, which would limit debate. It seldom has been adopted and even its advocates despaired of polling the two-thirds majority vote necessary to gag Long and his band of insurgents.

OFFERS TO CEASE

The filibuster entered its fifth day with Long and his cohorts still tying up all legislation. Long offered to halt his blockading tactics whenever Senate leaders agreed to lay aside the Glass bill and bring up some agricultural or industrial relief legislation for enactment. Long said:

"I'm willing to call off this fight any time they bring forward a bill to put clothing on our naked unemployed or food in the mouths of our starving people. I'm even willing to call it off if they try to pass any bill they claim will help the farmer. If they'll bring in a measure like that, I'll use all my influence, and I ain't got none, to pass it after sidetracking the Glass bill."

BACKERS ANGERED

Angry over Long's direction of the filibuster, friends of the bill have failed to explain its provisions. This gave Long an opportunity to charge that Senators do not know what is in the bill. As he criticized section after section, the bill's sponsors began introducing amendments to correct the defects. This procedure was taken as proof that Long's charges were true.

After cloture is beaten, friends of the Glass bill must go to Long with their hats in their hands and beg for a compromise. If they don't, or he refuses to compromise, the bill will be abandoned. In any event, Huey will win—and in a major battle.

Sewickley Citizens Demand Tax Slash

Demanding a tax reduction of approximately 35 per cent, almost 600 Sewickley residents have signed a petition which will be presented to the Borough Council at its next meeting, Tuesday night, according to sponsors of the tax relief drive.

The petition asks that municipal economies be practiced and that a committee of taxpayers appear before Council to make suggestions for savings in the budget. One of the proposed plans for reducing borough expenses, it is understood, will be dismissal of the borough manager.

BANK PLAN MAY BE EXTENDED

Plans to extend the time for taking subscriptions for stock in the new downtown bank to be formed to take over part of the assets of the closed Monongahela and Diamond National Banks are being considered today.

When work was started on the reorganization, January 15 was set as the final date for making sales of stock. A week ago it was announced that 4,000 out of the needed 14,000 shares had been sold. Reports covering the results for the past week are not yet available but it is understood that the required total has not been reached.

Members of the committees working on the reorganization were unwilling to make any declaration of their plans since the comptroller of the currency at Washington must be consulted if the time limit is to be extended.

LETTER TRAPS 2 IN ROBBERY

Trailed by police of Carnegie and Steubenville, O., two men were held in the Carnegie Jail today, accused of the $400 robbery of the Smith drug store, East Main street and Washington avenue, Carnegie, January 3.

The suspects were trapped, police said, at Steubenville, where one of them received mail from his wife in Cincinnati, O. The police said they are Patsy Utchel, 33, alias John Wallace, who is under parole from London Farms Prison, Ohio, where he was serving a sentence for robbery, and George J. Bubnas, 24, Hollidays Cove, W. Va.

The police said Utchel received a letter from his wife yesterday, and when Bubnas called at the Steubenville Postoffice for mail they trailed him until they found him with Utchel. Police Chief Chris H. Keisling, of Carnegie, said the men admitted the robbery.

SOVIET FORUM SPEAKERS SEE RECOGNITION

'Unofficial Envoy' Forecasts Russian Prosperity

In a spirited symposium on Soviet Russia, six speakers, including an unofficial representative of the Soviet government and an outstanding opponent of the Soviet system, agreed here last night that it would be an advantage to the United States to recognize the Soviet, or that recognition is soon to come.

Speakers, both national and local, told from personal experience of the progress made by Russia under the Soviet system, but said they had found evils in the system that were far at odds with American ideals of liberty. Following the speeches, questions were fired at the speakers by many of the more than 500 persons who packed the ballroom of the Hotel Schenley. The symposium was sponsored by the Pittsburgh branch of the Foreign Policy Association.

FORECASTS PROSPERITY

Boris E. Skvirsky, of Washington, termed the "Soviet ambassador without portfolio," described the work and plans of his government and the problems it faces. He said the rate of development in Russia had convinced the Russians their program has been worth its price, and painted a vivid picture of the prosperity they hope to achieve.

Sherwood Eddy, non-Communist writer and lecturer, told of his numerous visits to Russia, said he believed great evil and great good will come from the Russian revolution, and favored recognition as a step toward prosperity and peace. He said:

"The overshadowing evil is the denial of liberty under a dictatorship which takes the form sometimes of tyranny, sometimes of terror."

Dr. Eddy said recognition of the Soviet government would not mean approval of it.

ENGINEER TALKS

George A. Burrell, president of Burrell-Mase Engineering Company, who was engaged in engineering in Russia, said the United States need not fear communism from Russia, because it will only be born in the United States through economic sickness in the country.

GUARDSMAN KILLS RIDING MASTER IN FIGHT OVER WIFE

HUSBAND SEIZED HOUR AFTER SLAYING

Taunted by Horseman, He Says After Arrest

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Seized in Elizabeth, N. J., Harvey Parry, 32-year-old U. S. Coast Guardsman today was to be returned to Port Richmond, Staten Island, to face a charge of homicide in connection with the fatal shooting of Garnet Brotherton, a riding master employed by Parry.

The coast guardsmen, Elizabeth police said, admitted shooting Brotherton in his room last night because of attentions allegedly paid to Parry's wife.

Brotherton's body was found by his landlady, who notified police a man in Coast Guard uniform had left the house a short time earlier. An hour later, Parry was taken into custody.

Parry, attached to the Clifton Coast Guard base, opened a riding academy and hired Brotherton to operate it, police said. Angered because the riding master became "very attentive" to Mrs. Parry, officers quoted the Coast Guardsman as saying he discharged Brotherton last Wednesday after a quarrel.

The quarrel was said to have been renewed last night when Parry visited Brotherton to warn him away from Mrs. Parry.

Police quoted Parry as stating the riding master taunted him and and told him Mrs. Parry had "paid for the suit I'm wearing." Parry, according to officers, then pulled a .32 caliber pistol and fired eight bullets into Brotherton's head and body.

Parry was quoted as saying:

'Then everything went blank, and I don't remember anything until I was arrested."

Snappy Answers When Diplomats Work In Secret

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Let's see how secret diplomacy leads to short answers.

France asked us about the debt agreement. We hollered:

"What agreement?"

They screamed:

"What debt?"

Which means that everything is postponed by mutilated consent. Nobody remembers any verbal promises and the written treaties are now as old and yellow as the mouth of the Mississippi.

Over in Paris there is a premier singing, "On the banks of the Rapidan" in a canceled tenor voice. What a spot for a vacation when you want to forget.

'BUY AMERICAN' INDORSED BY BRENTWOOD

Castle Shannon Group Lauds Campaign For Prosperity

A suggestion that some measures be taken to force the country to buy American was suggested by C. H. Bracken, borough solicitor of Brentwood, after Brentwood Council unanimously passed a resolution indorsing "Buy American."

Bracken suggested the resolution to Council in his annual report. With President Frank Letzkus presiding, councilmen and citizens attending the meeting favored the campaign sponsored by the Hearst papers.

Adding their approval also were members of the George E. Meinen Council No. 296, Junior Order United American Mechanics of Castle Shannon.

Acting upon instructions by the order, members of which pledged themselves to "Buy American," George R. Weis, junior past councillor of the order wrote:

"We wish to congratulate you and your newspapers for having started what we consider to be the first constructive move to relieve the depressed economic conditions of the country, and to assure you of our support—individually and as an organization."

With the continued flow of indorsements and the personal pledges of thousands of citizens of all circles to "Buy American" bearing practical results, it was learned from the Department of Commerce that steel imports in the first 11 months of 1932 totaled 348,892 tons—mostly high class steel.

With 1,000 tons giving 300 men work for a week—more than 9,000 Americans were deprived of a week's work by the sale of the steel made in Germany, Holland, France, Britain and Sweden.

Approximately 300 people offered to adopt Tootsie. The six-acre residence of Mr. Schaeffer was selected as offering the most suitable environment for Tootsie.

C. W. Hancock, former manager of a camp at Scully Yard, yesterday told Humane Society officials that the dog was repaying a debt of gratitude in rescuing her 12 masters. The men had saved Tootsie's life by feeding her milk from a bottle, Hancock said, when her mother died the day following Tootsie's birth.

LINK MARKHAM LOANS IN LOVE BALM STORY

Woman Novelist, Loser Of $500,000 Suit, in Debt to Poet

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—Mrs. Alma Newton Anderson, novelist who lost her $500,000 conspiracy suit against Ernest R. Graham, wealthy architect, is involved in litigation because of loans from Edwin Markham, the noted poet, court records disclosed today.

The romance writer had taken the witness stand in the suit against Graham and told a story of "a violent and passionate love affair" during which she said the architect supported her in sumptuous apartments here and in New York. Shortly after the trial began, however, Judge Paul McWilliams ordered a verdict of "not guilty." It was reported that a "substantial settlement" had been made, but this was denied by defense attorneys.

Mrs. Anderson's dealings with Markham, author of "The Man With the Hoe," were brought out in a pending Federal Court action upon a $35,000 annuity of the woman author's which was set up through the Canada Life Insurance Company of Toronto. The insurance company, which was to pay Mrs. Anderson $500 a month until 1934, asked Federal Judge Wilkerson to take charge of the payments due to a dispute over assignment of the payments to Markham. Two attorneys for Markham seek a share of the payment fees.

An attorney for Mrs. Anderson explained that the woman novelist had assigned the payments to Markham to satisfy several advances of money made to her.

Technocracy Topic Before Socialists

Bankers Told Change Needed to Avert Worse Slump

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP.) — Technocracy's head man, Howard Scott, has stirred up a new wave of controversy today as a result of his first formal discussion of the subject with some leading bankers and industrialists.

The New York Times said a survey of the audience which heard him last night at a Society of Arts and Sciences dinner showed that in general his hearers expressed skepticism, as well as disappointment at what they regarded as a confused presentation.

Scott had said:

That social conditions would get worse and worse if present trends continued, and that unemployment would increase in this country "to 20,000,000 within 18 months" unless steps were taken:

That "not one single political outstanding figure or ffinancial figure has come forward with any proposal that has one iota of usefulness in dealing with present-day conditions;"

That "there is nothing inherent in democracy, or the price system, that can deal with the problems in hand;"

That "the more energy we consume per capita, the more is a change in control necessitated;"

That America and Russia both have an "obsolete price system;"

The bankers, whom Scott referred to as "debt merchants," heard him calmly. Although Scott denied technocracy was trying to say "there is going to be chaos or there is going to be doom," Jefferson Seligman, of Seligman Brothers, bankers, found Scott's views "rather gloomy."

Frank A. Vanderlip, former president of the National City Bank, found the findings of technocracy "a pretty true picture."

PITT MAN RAPS TECHNOCRATS

Technocrats confuse ideal possibilities with actual performance in the face of the fact that all the evidence pertaining to Technocracy has not been assembled, Dr. Francis D. Tyson, University of Pittsburgh professor of economics, explained before a luncheon meeting of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

Dr. Tyson traced the growth of the movement from the introduction of the word Technocracy by W. H. Smith, a California engineer, in 1919, to its present, publicized standing through presentation by Howard Scott, New York engineer. He described Technocracy as:

"It is becoming the popular slogan of this depression, like the Single Tax in the eighties and Free Silver in the nineties.

ChineseCrime Thriller on 4 Stations

Starring Mary Duncan, popular film and stage actress, "Held for Ransom," a dramatization of the experiences of Mrs. Muriel Pawley, who as a bride of 18 was held captive by Chinese brigands for seven weeks in the interior of China, is presented tonight on WCAE at 7 o'clock; on KQV at 9:15; on WWVA, Wheeling, at 5:30 and on WMMN, Fairmont, at 6.

Miss Duncan

The drama has been prepared from Mrs. Pawley's own story of her extraordinary adventure, which appears in tomorrow's issue of the American Weekly, the magazine distributed each Sunday with the Sun-Telegraph, and is one of a series of programs being offered over more than 100 radio stations throughout the country by 17 Hearst newspapers, including the Sun-Telegraph.

"The Golden Thread," a new series of musical interpretations of old world legends by a 42-piece orchestra, augmented by choral groups under the direction of Frank Black, NBC general musical director, opens on WCAE at 9 p. m.

Ellery Queen and Barnaby Ross, mystery story writers, and Edwin Balmer, magazine editor, come to a CBS microphone to appear as fiction sleuths with Capt. John Ayres, head of the New York Police Department's missing persons bureau, and Thomas L. Stix on the "America's Grub Street Speaks" program carried by WJAS at 6. They attempt to solve an actual murder case submitted by Capt. Ayres during the broadcast.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Friday the thirteenth, unlucky? What an idea! For Daniel O'Connell, of Rankin, it was his birthday and the first day he has worked for many months.

* * *

Poor old neglected Brentwood. A complaint. Why don't we say something about the birds out there? One young lady has seen dozens of cardinals, wild canaries, robins, crows, red headed woodpeckers, and what nots. Never have been apprised of the varied plumage of the ornithological species.

* * *

Mrs. J. W. Yeager, of Brookline, isn't so sure that there isn't something to this Friday Thirteenth business. She put 12 muffins in the oven and went to listen to the Globe-Trotter. She came back and found 13. No wonder she feels the G-T put the jinx on her . . . Margaret Willet, West Liberty, is anxious for October to arrive when there will be another thirteenth that will fall on Friday. Her first mail yesterday morning contained a $50 check. Hope it's good.

* * *

Received a nice letter from the Club Chiqutia, of Turtle Creek, the proceeds from whose activities are changed into food coupons and distributed among the needy. Albert A. Derzak, of 411 George street, is always on the lookout for an opportunity to help.

* * *

And we don't want to forget to wish Happy New Year to all the Serbians, Greeks and Russians.

* * *

Edward Nell, Jr., operatic baritone, suddenly became a whispering singer of popular songs the other night, substituting for Whispering Jack Smith, who's been seriously ill.

* * *

Isham Jones and his wife have adopted an infant boy whose mother died at his birth.

Shields' Political Review On WCAE

Mark Shields, political editor of the Sun-Telegraph, speaking from the studios of WCAE, analyzes the latest political developments of local, state and national scope during his weekly broadcast tonight at 6 o'clock.

News flashes by Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, are broadcast today by WCAE and WJAS at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m. and 2:15 p. m. and by WCAE at 6:30 p. m.

Pittsburgher In Network Minstrels

Chauncey Parsons, former Pittsburgh singer who went West to achieve radio fame, has won a new network job. With Joe Parsons, he has been added to the "Minstrels," heard over an NBC network, including KDKA, from Chicago each Monday at 9 p. m. . . . if you've ever wondered, the dog barking heard on various Columbia programs has its origin in the vocal antics of Kay Beall, who also crows like a rooster and is making a nice living by answering hurry calls to the studio to add realism to broadcasts.

Mr. Parsons

* * *

"Thundering Ed" Thorgerson has resigned at NBC, effective January 31.

* * *

Bits about the stars . . . Donald Novis wrings his hands before going on the air . . . Carson Robison's father was Bert Robison, well-known cowboy fiddler . . . Gladys Rice's favorite color combination is black and red . . . Clyde Doerr, saxophone virtuoso, was first violinist in the San Francisco Symphony.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Game

The lean, gray years that surely are my fate
Until the rich earth covers me at last,
Will find this lad serene as like as not,
A wistful dreamer, living in the past.

If the gay fiddler plays no more for me,
If grapes are crushed that other lips may drink—
Shall I give way to utter poignancy
And totter on despair's senescent brink?

Not I! With subtle smile and pipe alight
I'll pass my nights in certain solitude;
Your absence will not mar my quiet flight
Nor shake the golden dust from tempered mood;

My mind will paint your picture, clean and clear—
Your virtues stressed, your faults forgotten, dear!
—Don Wahn.

Haw!

Fred (Bath Club) Allen, one of the more amusing clowns, joins the army of Roxy tormenters. Allen reports that with all the exaggeration that went with Roxy's newest theaters, with Roxy ordering 500 of this when he should have ordered 50 of that, etc., he finally got all mixed up.

The day before the house opened at Radio City, Roxy was on the stage conducting a rehearsal. He was giving instructions to various people, when he looked in the wings and saw the woman whose act was next. Her specialty was hair-raising stunts with four horses.

Seeing the four horses offstage, Roxy screamed:

"My gosh! We're not even open yet—and there are mice in the house!"

In Other Words

Barney Friedman thinks there is something slanderous in our calling Ben Bernie "the old maestroach."

"You know, Walter," writes Barney, "it's like adding insect to injury. I trust that the midtown Rockefeller venture will never be called 'In-the-Redio City.'"

By Way of Report

On the airwaves recently we told of the latest invention. A small recording device that stands next to your phone, at the home or office, when you are out. Your incoming calls will be answered this way:

"This is John Doe mechanically speaking. Mr. Doe will not return until 4 o'clock. Do you wish to leave a message?"

If the caller wishes to—the message is likewise recorded. The inventor, we said, who figured out this gadget while broke, spurned $200,000 from phone companies, preferring to rent his contraption to subscribers.

Many listeners want more on the subject, so will Mr. Mooney, who supplied the news, kick in?

Newspaperman Stuff

Leon Belasco, the Ambassador tempo titan, tells of a reporter who dreamed that he passed on and went to Heaven. He found it not unlike a modern city, except, of course, that it was an ideal place in every respect but one.

St. Peter, knowing his business, assigned him to the local newspaper office. There the reporter found a well printed and beautifully illustrated newspaper, but when he read the gossip column, he rushed over and complained:

"That's the most wretchedly gathered and worst written news I've ever seen!"

"I know," replied Saint Peter, "but you see—we never get any columnists up here!"

Souvent femme Varie

Now the letter's down the chute,
Beyond interception;
Now it's reached the dear galoot—
What is its reception?

Gods of impulse, you're to blame;
I was feeling clever,
Nasty, too—the note, the same
Should have left me never.

Nymphs of moods, you know my lot;
I do so repent it—
When he reads it, please do not Let him think I meant it!
—Sis Willner.

Add New Games

The local wisenheimers want to keep the Reincarnation game going. Georgie Price points out that Adam came back as a chewing gum, and Napoleon returned as a pastry . . . Ted Weems says that Robert Burns came back as a fugitive from a chain gang, Eugenie as a hat, and Alexander as a cocktail . . . Jack Denny reminds us that Webster returned as a dictionary, Madison as a high school, and O'Sullivan as a heel.

And Chesterfield—as a coat?

MUSIC
Stephen Foster Memorial Concert
Carnegie Music Hall

Mr. Lissfelt

Under the auspices of the Tuesday Musical Club and the Stephen Foster Memorial Association quite a large audience enjoyed the best Foster concert ever given here. Under the influence of a genial speaker and some excellent singers, Foster was made to live again, the Pittsburgh memorial was given encouragement, and the evening became a fitting climax to the many tributes paid during the day to our beloved composer.

The program opened with an organ prelude of Foster airs played by City Organist Marshall Bidwell. Ruth Thoburn Knox led her little ensemble of strings through some lovely Purcell music to the extreme satisfaction of everyone.

Then Josiah K. Lilly, a gentleman from Indiana, a man of simplest culture, a speaker who quickly draws his audience to his heart because of his message and because of himself, told his enthusiasms for Stephen Foster. He chided us Pittsburghers with his delicate wit, told of his enviable collection of Fosteriana and then brought us his Foster Hall quartet of Negro voices. They sang us sentimental and jolly songs of Foster in the good old style and inveigled everyone present to sing with them.

Finally our own Foster Singers who have been spreading the gospel of our treasured folk songs sang us five Foster tunes and the audience and concert singers all joined at the end in "The Old Folks at Home."

The stage was attractively set with the Foster piano and his portrait and everyone seemed willing to sing until midnight.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Murder Mystery Role For Ben Lyon

Ben Lyon has been signed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer under a long-term period contract, and is expected to begin work under his new affiliation in the near future. Lyon's pictures include "Lummox," "Hell's Angels," "Aloha," "Indiscreet" and "Compromised." He played opposite Marilyn Miller in "Her Majesty Love," and has just finished a role in "The Blue Moon Murder Mystery."

Local Girl Heads Show In the Plaza

Sally Saraff, Pittsburgh girl, heads the floor show in the Plaza, the management of which has reduced prices, effective at 9 o'clock each nite, so that no item is more than 20 cents. Tea dances are held every Saturday afternoon, 1 to 4:30 o'clock. Al. Marsico is master of ceremonies and Etzi Covato supplies the music.

FILM REVIEWS :-: Comment On Photoplays Shown Here for First Time :-: MOVIE GOSSIP

Wedding Ring Is Won By Gable

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

Mr. Seibel

"How could you?" the adoring admirers of Clark Gable will cry out as they see on the Penn's screen the new picture, "No Man of Her Own," in which he is not only a gambler, but a cheat, and treats Carole Lombard as no platinum blonde was ever treated by any gentleman. But then Clark is not a gentleman in this film, which looks as if it had been written for William Haines. Most of the time Clark is behaving like Haines when Haines has left his copy of Emily Post at home. He tries to look romantic, but merely succeeds in looking idiotic. As for Carole, she is the librarian in the public library of some rube town and is willing to go away with a traveling salesman, so long as he has no gold teeth—so of course, after tossing a coin, she goes away with Clark to be a gambler's bride.

But Clark has already given one woman the gate, and the merciless detective who is on his trail also turns up, so the wedded bliss of the gambler's bride is soon ruffled. Then Clark pretends to go to South America, has his pal send her cables from different ports, while Clark gets himself sent to Blackwell's Island for 90 days just to repent.

The picture is romantic piffle of the silliest sort, but it gives Carole Lombard a chance to wear many ravishing negligees and clingy gowns.

About the only thought inspired by the picture is the hope that our screen stars may soon take their baths in their bungalows instead of the studio lot.

Walt Disney's new Mickey Mouse, "The Wayward Canary," is the gem of the program, for the Charley Chase comedy also is rather stupid and occasionally vulgar. But there is a fine bullfighting reel that shows how this old Spanish custom is put into practice.

W. R. Hearst On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

William Randolph Hearst, noted editor and publisher, is seen and heard in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News in a vigorous statement supporting the nation-wide "Buy American" movement. Mr Hearst says:

"My friends, the policy—the sustained policy—of buying goods of American manufacture rather than goods of foreign manufacture is not only a patriotic policy for the general good of the nation, but a policy that will surely inure to our own benefit.

"Prosperity depends upon the purchasing power of the community and the purchasing power of the community depends mainly upon the distribution of wealth in wages.

"When we buy American goods, we give employment to American labor and a legitimate profit to American industry. That is what makes general prosperity, and each and every one of us is dependent for his prosperity upon the general prosperity. Therefore, let us on this New Year resolve to make it a policy for 1933 to buy American goods and to give work to American labor and to distribute wealth in wages and so create and revive the prosperity which we so lately enjoyed."

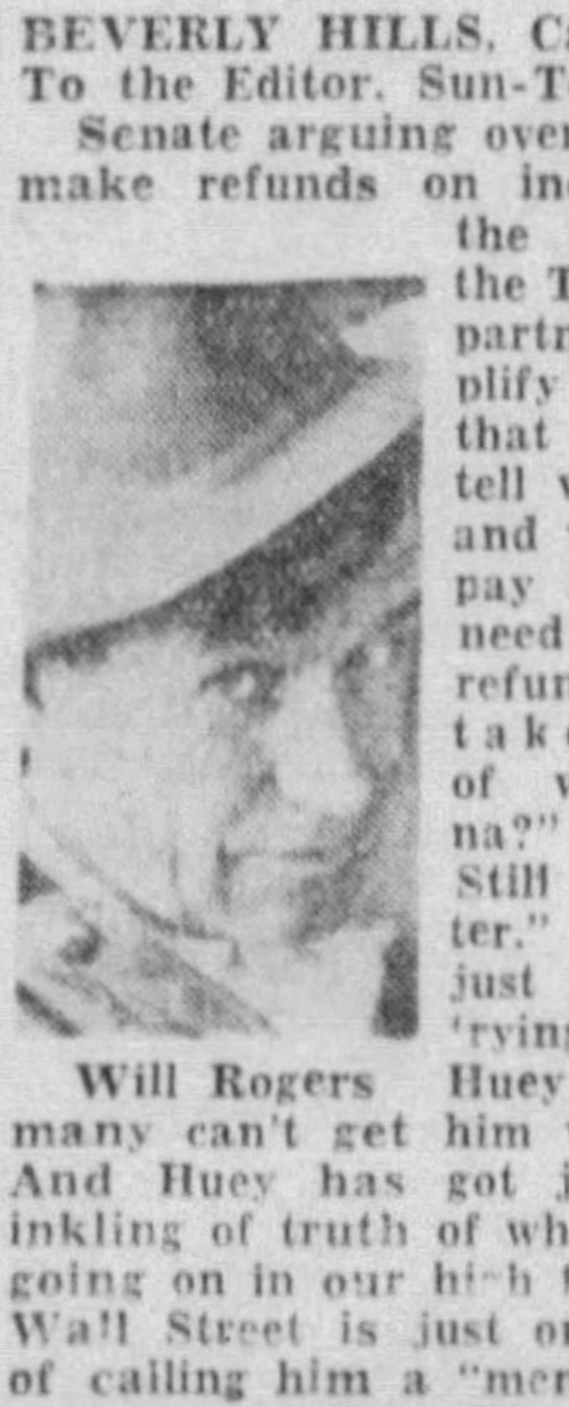
Views from the air of the great Wall of China, the gateway to Jehol, which has been the scene of furious fighting in Japan's latest drive, are shown. The situation is illustrated with maps upon which the Globe-Trotter takes the audience over the area of conflict.

Former Mayor "Jimmy" Walker, of New York, is pictured in the grounds of a Paris hotel with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scully, who are collaborating with him on his new book, which he says will be called "Letters I Forgot to Mail." Betty Compton acts as his typist.

Jim Londos, after a year's absence from New York, comes back to win over Abie Coleman in a terrific mat battle.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Jan. 14. To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph.



Will Rogers

Senate arguing over "who is to make refunds on income taxes, the Senate or the Treasury Department." Simplify the tax so that folks can tell what to pay and what not to pay and neither need make any refund. "Japan takes je-whole of what? China?" "Senate Still in Filibuster." Imagine just 95 Senators trying to outtalk Huey Long. That many can't get him warmed up. And Huey has got just enough inkling of truth of what has been going on in our high finance that Wall Street is just on the verge of calling him a "menace."

Yours, WILL.

Broadways of the World
All in a Day
—By Mark Hellinger—

HOTEL GEORGE THE FIFTH, PARIS, FRANCE.—Step up and meet a few of the characters I've encountered in Paris thus far. A curious mixture, I suppose—but they probably regard me in the same light, So it really makes very little difference.

First, Pearl White. The first queen of the movies. When I was a kid, she had me daffy. As the star of the "Perils of Pauline," the first and greatest of the old movie serials, she had me standing in line in front of the old Yorkville theater every Saturday afternoon. I couldn't wait for the doors to open.

What that poor girl went through! Jumping from moving trains. Resisting thousands of armed desperadoes. Ducking iron claws and masked menaces at every turn. Leaping in her lover's arms on the street below without a scratch.

Yes, the memory of Pearl White was a sweet one to me. I had never met her before this visit to Paris, and I suppose it's just as well. Sweet memories, in order to be sweet memories, must always remain part of the past. When you strive to make them part of the present, they vanish forever.

Not bad, Mr. Hellinger, for this hour of the day. Where was I? Oh yes. I was talking about Pearl White. She looks well. The years haven't changed her as much as I thought they would. She has grown stouter, but she still retains her sparkle and vivacity to an amazing degree.

We talked for more than an hour. About nothing in particular, really.

Pearl has been enormously successful over here. She gave up her theatrical career about 10 years ago and settled down to the business of being as happy as possible, which is not a bad occupation. She enjoys the best of everything, travels when she feels in the mood, has her own racing stable and generally lives life to the hilt.

You'd think, wouldn't you, that this would be one of the happiest of women? Yet I don't think she is—and if you ask her why, she replies with a shrug of the shoulders.

She may not know the reason, but I do. It's because, in her heart of hearts and in spite of her wealth, she would gladly change places with any pretty child in Hollywood who is just beginning to climb the road to fame . . .

Irvin Marks. A round-faced and genial gentleman who is known to at least a third of all the Americans who visit Paris with any regularity. Mr. Marks can do almost anything for you over here. He can help you select a piano, a spool of cotton, a new suit, a famous portrait, a good steak or a pair of crutches. You have merely to tell Mr. Marks your needs, and he has everything settled at a moment's notice.

It's most amazing, too. For although Irvin has been over here more than 25 years, his French is still one of the most startling methods of speech to which I have ever listened. He sat in my room the other night and ordered a table in a certain restaurant. And I give you herewith an authentic report of his conversation:

"Hello, Chez Victor? This is Meshoo Marks. Donnez-mois, please, the maitre-de-hotel. Qui. Hello. Maitre-de-hotel? This is Meshoo Marks. I want you to reservez-moi une table pour six tonight. You comprenez? Good. I see you aprez. So long."

"You ought to take up this language, Mark," he advised. "Once you get the knack of it, it's a cinch!"

In spite of his bum French, however, I like Mr. Marks a great deal. He is thoroughly conversant with the show business and knows the Parisian stage from every angle. Which is only natural, for Irvin acts as French representative for half the theatrical managers on Broadway. That is, of course, if there are any managers left on Broadway by the time this reaches print.

Albert B——. A tall and lumbering chap who acted as my guide for several days. Of all the guides I have had thus far Albert's approach has been the most unusual. He did not want to see me gypped!

"Mr. Hellinger," he told me the very first day, "you must be very careful over here. Beware of those who would appear too friendly. They want nothing more than to get the Americans' money."

"Do not think me bold, Mr. Hellinger," he asserted, "but I have watched you tip, and I think you are very foolish. These people do not respect you when you tip too lavishly.

On the fourth day, I found out that Albert's worthy cause was none other than Albert, himself—which didn't surprise me in the least. He steered me into a perfume joint where they had a complete layout staged for my benefit. And he deliberately tried to cheat me out of some 800 francs on the established price.

I said nothing. I examined everything in an innocent fashion—and bought nothing. When we reached the street, I paid Albert the exact amount of his salary, even to the hour.

"From now on, Albert, you and I are quits," I said. "Here's your salary. I'm taking your advice about not tipping lavishly because I want you to respect me. As a matter of fact, I want you to respect me so much that I'm not tipping you at all. Goodby."

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

An impressive list of performers will present the entertainment that will make up the big vaudeville show to be given Sunday night in the Stanley, under the auspices of the Variety Club for the benefit of its ward, Catherine Variety Sheridan. Artists will include Bill Robinson and Ada Brown, Dan Healey, Rae Samuels, Frank Richardson, Peter Higgins, Norman Prescott, Bebe Stanton, Madeline Fuller, Gracie Barrie, Serge Flash, Talent and Merit, Jack Pepper and Company, Julius Tannen, Garner Weir and Harkins, Johnny Pastine and Company, Stone Gibbons Revue and Morris and Campbell. There will be more than 50 persons in the various acts.

Monday afternoon the Nixon will begin a week of two-a-day showings of the photoplay, "The Sign of the Cross." It is a Cecil B. DeMille production of the Wilson Barrett play, with a large cast, headed by Fredric March, Claudette Colbert, Elissa Landi and Charles Laughton.

Beery-Gable To Team

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 14.—Here is some red meat for your cinema diet.

As soon as he completes "The White Sister," Clarke Gable is to co-star with Wallace Beery in the Soviet story that has been knocking around Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for some months. Perhaps this explains why the studio turned Clark's request for the lead in "Clear All Wires," which also has a Russian locale.

"Soviet," the only name for the new film to date, has given M-G-M writers a good deal of trouble. The final and successful treatment must be practically credited to Frank Capra, Columbia's star director, who is being loaned for the one picture.

Capra is the man who turned out the best of the Jack Holt-Ralph Graves melodramas.

* * *

It's all very secret, but you can look for Charley Chaplin to make another court move about his children in the not too distant future. The comedian still goes everywhere with Paulette Goddard. The two of them were at the Pasadena Community Playhouse the other evening to see the opening of Benn W. Levy's play, "The Devil Passes." . . . Loretta Young and Lyle Talbot were another film couple at this opening. Also Diana Wynyard. The English actress, you recall, was doing this on Broadway when she was signed for the movies.

Don't know just how sensational he plans it, but Upton Sinclair is to write a novel about the University of Southern California-Notre Dame football game.

Raft Is Star In Warner

By WILLIAM PFARR

"Under-Cover Man" opened yesterday in the Warner with George (Coinflip) Raft acting superbly with a cast equally fine in performance; with excellent directing, very nifty dialogue and—a weak story.

It was the first picture in which Raft failed to flip a coin, which is an indication how depressed the times are, perhaps. The fact that early yesterday, the theater was doing a good business may mean otherwise.

However ably he acted, his supporters, Nancy Carroll, Roscoe Karns, Noel Francis, Lew Cody, Gregory Ratoff and others kept pace with him, handling the bright lines that appeared here and there to save this tale from a somewhat worse branding.

In addition, Morton Downey and Vincent Lopez furnish an attractive feature, while "Krazy Kat" shows signs of a very slight headache—he's not up to standard.

Stanley Film Spectacular Drama

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Ruth Chatterton, appearing in "Frisco Jenny," on the Stanley screen, is giving her best photoplay performance since her memorable "Madame X," which was hailed as one of the most excellent pictures of its year. And it need not be considered any defect when it is stated that "Frisco Jenny" is the "Madame X" theme again, differing only in the details—but, oh, what a difference!

With the mother sacrificing herself for the son who prosecutes her, unaware of their relationship, there is a spectacular background and a wealth of picturesque atmosphere, together with varied dramatic incidents that make the story grippingly interesting, even after it reaches the point where it becomes evident that a woman who flouts the law in every way, is again about to make that greatest sacrifice through the promptings of mother-love.

It is strong meat, this "Frisco Jenny," and it seldom gets away from an underworld setting, except through sequences showing, with sensational realism, the devastation wrought by the great earthquake and fire in San Francisco. It is this catastrophe that makes Jenny Sandoval, decent at heart, although daughter of a Barbary Coast dive-keeper, an unmarried mother, her fiance perishing along with her father.

She tries to go straight, but a starving baby sends her in the opposite direction. Thereafter she lives only to get money, no matter how, and to keep her son in ignorance of her status in society. Finally, to keep him from learning their kinship. Action sweeps through the years. She becomes a power in politics. She has her son elected district attorney. She will step out and let him clean up the city as he has promised. She does, but not as she had planned. There is more to do. She must seal lips of all knowing her secret. And that means tragedy.

The cast is large and every character is finely drawn, but only two are close to Jenny throughout. These are Steve Dutton, her partner in illicit drug and liquor trades, and Amah, her Chinese maid and companion, well played, respectively, by Louis Calpern and Helen Jerome Eddy.

STOCK MARKET PRICE TONE STEADY

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—The stock market was steady in early trading today, although prices in general showed an inclination to drift slightly lower.

Allied Chemical, American Telephone, Chrysler and Westinghouse Electric lost fairly substantial fractions. Harvester, Continental Can and American Tobacco B were a shade lower. Sears Roebuck, Case, Nash and Reynolds Tobacco gained slightly while General Motors, United States Steel and Liggett & Myers B were steady. The rails were little changed, New York Central advancing a minor fraction and Southern Pacific losing as much. Santa Fe, Pennsylvania and Union Pacific were steady.

Overnight news contributed little to the factors already influencing price movements on the Stock Exchange. Consequently, more attention than usual was paid to the inherent character of the market itself, as shown by its recent behavior. While the advance was stopped short of a point where the market averages were about to touch their late November high point, considerable satisfaction was gleaned from the ease with which it penetrated its last December peak. Moreover, those who continued bullish on prospects noted that trading had turned quieter on recessions.

Against this viewpoint was the opinion expressed in some quarters that little could be expected by way of a major move while certain pending questions were the farm allotment bill, budget balancing, international debts and, from a banking viewpoint, the Glass banking bill.

The dollar was steady at the opening of the foreign exchange markets. Sterling and francs were unchanged at $3.35½ for London cables, and 3.90¼ cents for Paris drafts.

U. S. RECEIVES JAPAN GOLD

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—Resumption of gold shipments from Japan to the Unites States was signalized yesterday by the arrival of a $4,000,000 shipment consigned to the Yokohama Specie Bank here.

There has been no gold imports here from Japanese shippers since last June.

Chinese gold shipments have been coming into this port with more or less regularity. Yesterday $818,000 in Chinese gold was received here and last week the aggregate was $2,177,000.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—Gold stocks of the United States increased $7,980,500 yesterday. The Federal Reserve Bank reported receipts of $4,656,900 from France and $3,227,000 from Holland, while earmarked stocks decreased $96,600.

FOREIGN NEWS HITS WHEAT

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—Reports of increased pressure of Argentine and Canadian wheat abroad led to slightly early setbacks today in wheat prices here. Relative weakness of the Liverpool market, however, was not fully reflected in Chicago. Opening at a shade to ⅜ down, wheat later held near the initial range. Corn started ⅛-⅜ off and subsequently altered little.

Selling of Mercantile Issues Factor in Market Dip

Recurrent selling in some of the merchandising stocks, particularly the chain store issues, was among the factors making for heaviness and hesitation marketwise recently. The head of S. S. Kresge Company, replying to inquiries relative to business and company position during 1932, said Kresge "came to the end of the year with no bank or commercial paper loans, and with net cash of $3,500,000. Obviously," he continued, "it is impossible to determine exactly earnings for the year until all of our store inventories have been checked and consolidated," adding, "it is our belief, in spite of decreased volume, that economies put into effect during the year have gone a long way to offset shrinkage in volume profits."

Loadings of the Atchison railway system this week are showing a better-than-expected upturn from the holiday period depression. Loadings to date are almost 3,000 cars above those in the corresponding period of the previous week, when the total wa. 18,530 cars, and compare with the low point of 15,930 in the final week of 1932. Loadings Thursday were the largest since December 8, when they totaled 3,728 cars.

Just as optimism causes overenthusiasm in boom years, so pessimism causes under-estimates of business in poor years. That has been shown lately by the fact that estimates made on the volume of business in a number of industries related to chemicals for 1932 were considerably below the final volume revealed when full returns for the year were completed. In other words there is basis for hope that things are not quite as bad as they are painted in these industries.

Preliminary figures of railway purchases for 1932, compiled by the Railway Age, present some startling and highly significant facts about business and the railroads. These figures show that the railroads of the United States spent approximately $441,500,000 in the markets of the country for fuel and materials and supplies in 1932, exclusive of expenditures for locomotives and cars, for construction work performed under contract and for heat, light, water, power and other miscellaneous services. They also show that railway purchases have been increasing steadily since June. In 1931 corresponding railway purchases amounted to approximately $695,000,000. In 1930, they amounted to approximately $1,038,000,000. In 1929 they were $1,329,000,000, and in the five years from 1925 to 1929, inclusive, they averaged $1,389,000,000 per year.

In November, 1932, for the first time in the history of the electric industry, domestic consumption of electricity was below that of the corresponding period of the previous year. Despite the adverse business conditions and loss of domestic meters use of electricity by that class of customers was ahead of 1931 during the first 10 months of 1932. Though the decline in November was very small—only 0.2 per cent—it would seem to indicate a definite effect of economy measures by that class of user which heretofore have been offset to a great extent by the steady addition to lines of electric refrigerators. It is estimated that by the end of November there were 750,000 more refrigerators on the domestic lines than at the same time in 1931.

Consolidated shipments by Baldwin Locomotive Works and affiliated companies for 1932 amounted to $11,218,000 according to preliminary reports. This compares with shipments in 1931 amounting to $22,972,000. Consolidated business booked in December amounted to $468,000 against $736,000 in November and $1,057,000 in December, 1931. Consolidated shipments in December totaled $769,000 compared to $756,000 in November and $1,424,000 in December last year. There has been a slight improvement in business since the turn of the year.

LESS COTTON CONSUMED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The Census Bureau reports lint cotton consumed in mills of the United States during December amounted to 440,062 running bales, compared to 503,722 in November and 415,401 in December, 1931. Total consumption for the five months ended December 31 was 2,340,284 bales, as against 2,191,017 bales in the like period of the 1931-32 season.

Cotton on hand December 31 was held as follows: In consuming establishments, 1,530,110 bales, compared with 1,456,913 on November 30 last year, and 1,630,719 on December 31, 1931. In public storage and at compresses, 10,349,808 bales, compared with 10,677,362 on November 30 last year, and 10,414,412 on December 31, 1931.

Imports for December totaled 10,742, compared with 8,974 in November last year and 12,705 in December, 1931. Exports totaled 1,039,795 bales, compared with 1,012,411 in November last year, and 1,183,121 in December, 1931.

Cotton spindles active during December numbered 23,775,136, compared with 24,349,506 in November last year and 24,688,094 in December, 1931.

A. I. C. EARNINGS OFF IN 1932

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—The American International Corporation, in its report for 1932, shows operating income of $21,057, compared with $168,889 for the preceding year. During the year debentures of an aggregate face value of $6,785,000 were acquired at an average cost of $72.03, making a total in the treasury at the end of the year of $10,805,000 face value. After deducting the debentures, the corporation's net assets were equivalent to $3.40 per outstanding share of common stock, compared with $5.46 at the end of 1931.

As of December 31 last, the value of securities owned by the corporation was $16,226,00, as compared with an original cost of $33,840,439. At the annual meeting on January 31, stockholders will vote on a proposal to reduce the amount of the capital represented by the common stock from $15,914,325 to $1,060,955, or $1 a share.

1932 IRON ORE OUTPUT DOWN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Iron ore mined in the United States in 1932, exclusive of ore that contained 5 per cent or more of manganese in the natural state, is estimated at 9,588,000 gross tons, a decrease of 69 per cent as compared with that mined in 1931 and was the lowest since 1885, according to the Bureau of Mines.

Ore shipped from mines is estimated at 5,364,000 gross tons, valued at $13,042,000, a decrease of 81 per cent in quantity and 82 per cent in total value from 1931. Average value of the ore per gross ton at the mines in 1932 was $2.43 against $2.60 in 1931.

Stocks of iron ore at the mines, mainly in Minnesota and Michigan, increased 33 per cent to 17,316,000 tons in 1932 from 13,063,708 tons in 1931. The stocks at the end of 1932 were the largest ever accumulated at the mines.

Shipments of Tires Lower in November

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Shipments of pneumatic casings in November totaled 1,711,298 units, as against 1,799,136 in October and 2,887,464 in November, 1931, according to the Rubber Manufacturers Association. Production in November amounted to 2,303,545 pneumatic casings, comparing with 2,568,641 in the preceding month and 2,500,788 in November, 1931.

Inventory on November 30, 1932 totaled 7,454,443 pneumatic casings, against 6,875,980 on October 31 and 7,919,034 on November 30, 1931.

Steel Mill Output Has Slow Start for New Year

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

STEEL MILL ACTIVITY has had a slow start this year. It is early to judge the extent of the seasonal revival which usually starts in January and extends through February and March. Only a moderate improvement has taken place since the low point was recorded at the end of 1932.

The steel companies, however, are in a position to make money on a smaller volume of business than at any time in many years. This reflects the economics in operation and in management which have been instituted under the influence of the depression.

Three years ago few steel companies would have been able to cover all their expenses and charges on an output of less than 50 or 60 per cent of capacity. At present, with prices far lower, the operating rate at which profits can be shown has been materially lowered.

This change will have a far reaching significance. While a large share of the steel companies started to show deficits when output dropped below the 50 per cent level a few years ago, many of these organizations could now show a profit on this same volume of business.

Only Moderate Recovery Needed

WHILE THE DEMAND for steel was at such a low rate during the final three months of 1932 that only one of the leading steel producers is expected to report a profit for the period, only a relatively small recovery will be needed to restore the industry as a whole to a profitable basis.

As an example, Gulf States Steel Company has lowered its costs to a point where it can earn all its charges on operations at 30 per cent of capacity. Reflecting the lower cost basis, and a spurt in steel buying last September, the company had its best quarterly results in more than two years in the final three months of 1932. It is probable that Gulf States Steel about broke even during that period with all charges for depreciation and interest approximately earned.

Republic Steel Shows Improvement

REPUBLIC STEEL Corporation shows the results of similar economies. The company enters 1933 with the lowest costs in its history. It is declared to be capable of earning all charges with operations at 35 per cent of capacity.

A year ago, after steady cuts in selling and administrative costs, the pay point was brought down to 40 per cent. The severity of the decline in the steel business made it imperative late in the year to institute further economies.

Additional efforts toward economy have brought the critical point down to the present level of 35 per cent.

Lead Production Lower Last Year

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The output of refined, primary lead from domestic ores in 1932 was 35 per cent lower than in 1931, and was the smallest recorded since 1899, stated the Bureau of Mines.

The output of primary, domestic desilverized lead in 1932 was about 150,000 tons; of soft lead about 69,000 tons, and of desilverized soft lead about 35,000 tons, a total output from domestic ores of about 254,000 tons of refined lead against 390,260 tons in 1931.

Lead smelted and refined from foreign ore and bullion reached an output of about 33,000, compared with 52,504 tons in 1931.

It seeks, the announcement reveals, to secure, protect and develop patents pertaining to the improvement of Pennsylvania grade crude.

The first ballot will be taken by members of the Hide Exchange on February 6, the National Metal Exchange members will vote on the following day, and the Rubber and Silk exchanges on February 8 and 9 respectively.

HIGHER STEEL RATE SEEN

Recalling the comment of numerous steel producers last year that production had declined to a "below replacement" level, Wall street is fairly optimistic on the steel industry outlook for the first half of the year, believing that output will show a measurable increase over the present sub-normal rate.

RAIL REPORT RULE EASED

These reports which ordinarily would be filed beginning February 15, are now virtually covered in the month-to-month reports on income and balance sheet items filed by the carriers.

LOCAL MARKET ENDS WEEK QUIETLY

A quiet week-end session, dull almost to the point of stagnation, was witnessed on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. What little business was transacted disclosed no change in the general price situation. The few scattered trades recorded during the two-hour market found quotations on the usually active stocks just about where they left off last night.

Lone Star Gas remained in an area a small fraction above $7 a share. For the week this leader's range was confined to half a point and sales were smaller than for any week since just prior to the mid-summer rise. Koppers Gas preferred was handled again at 51, unchanged from yesterday. This is 14 points under last week's high point, attained on a sudden uprush when the Street heard unofficially that the company had earned twice the preferred dividend last year. Industrials were dull and unchanged as were the specialties.

FIELD TO HEAD CHICAGO BANK

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—(INS.)—Stanley Field, who shifted his energies from merchandising to the field of banking, was chosen board chairman of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Company yesterday. He will step into the position vacated by the recent resignation of George M. Reynolds, dean of Chicago's financiers, who severed his connection with the institution in order to spend his declining years in "just playing."

Before plunging into an active banking career, Field was an official of the Marshal Field & Co. Department Store, in which concern he still retains a directorship. Field's first banking experience was obtained 20 years ago when he was chosen a director of the Illinois Trust Company. The Continental Illinois is the nation's largest bank outside of New York City.

FARM MEASURE UNSOUND, SAYS ECONOMIST

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—In my opinion as an economist, the farm allotment bill as passed by the House is thoroughly unsound.

Its basis is the widespread desire to "do something for the farmer." We would all like to do that, but we should keep in mind that the object is to do something really sound and of practical value. What Congress is doing is to rush the thing through merely because it is tagged a "farm relief" bill. The name given the measure is what sells it!

But the real question is, is the measure likely to give the relief which we all desire? That takes us into the merits of the bill.

PRICE-BOOSTING BILL

To speak very plainly, we can fairly say that the so-called "parity" or "allotment" bill is really:

(1) A price-fixing and price-boosting bill.

(2) A farm dole.

(3) A piece of class legislation.

(4) A drastic and discriminating tax.

If you are opposed to any or all these things, you are opposed to the farm bill. If you believe that artificial price-fixing by the government has proved to be a failure, your conclusion is obvious.

100 PER CENT TAX

How can a Congressman who shies at a small general sales tax, and especially at taxing the necessaries of life, vote for a 100 per cent tax on flour, pork and cotton cloth?

How can those who rave about the grinding burden of taxation, defend a set of taxes that would aim to take over $35 away from the average family's annual income?

The bill is subject to two great groups of criticism: 1—Its economics are unsound; 2—Its administrative features are bad.

It provides no basis for balancing supply and demand, and it names arbitrary prices which have no relation to supply and demand.

WOULD HIT CONSUMPTION

To attempt to boost the prices of cloth, flour, pork and butter, would certainly reduce the consumption. The purchasing power of consumers would not stand it. Furthermore, there would be a shifting of consumption on to substitute products.

Congress would have to raise the prices of all food and clothing, in order to give anything like the full benefit of the tax to wheat, cotton, hog and dairy farmers.

You can put it this way: Either the prices of flour, cotton cloth, pork and butter will be raised, or they will not be raised. If they are raised, the quantities sold by the manufacturers will be reduced and the farmers unable to sell so much. If they are not raised, the manufacturers will be ruined by the taxes, and the farmers will lose their market.

So the plan is essentially a tax on the farmers' markets.

As a matter of fact, I am sure that neither cotton manufacturers nor pork packers can stand the proposed taxes. Cloth and pork markets won't stand much if any higher prices. (Why, the proposed taxes would about equal the total profits of packers during the last four or five years!)

BALANCE NOT ASSURED

So what assurance is there that supply and demand would be balanced? On one side, the demand would certainly be reduced. On the other side, they propose 20 per cent curtailment is absolutely uncertain. The acreage planted tells little about the crop. How are you going to control pig birth and hog weights? I could tell you a dozen ways in which production control would break down if a dole is given to farmers or prices are raised artificially.

All this is to say nothing of the supervising army of government employes that would be required, and the expense, waste, favoritism and graft.

One thing you may be sure of is that if we should launch such a farm dole price boosting scheme, the government's budget could not be balanced this year.

I have enough faith in the American people to believe that this bill will never become a law.

Chicago—Merchandise trade looks up; furniture mart yielded satisfactory volume due to attractive designs and prices; shoe manufacturers at convention intimated fairly good standing; wheat advances to highest point since November 15.

Cleveland—Improved confidence in banks results in $1,000,000 increase in savings accounts; automobile industry steps up production, with consequent benefit to employment; Cleveland steel on 30 per cent basis due to auto releases. Youngstown receives large pipe orders—Truscon announces $2,000,000 contract for refrigerator work.

Detroit—Retail trade in seasonal lull; wholesale lines, except drugs and paper inactive; automobile producers active on requirements for dealers' floors—preparations general for automobile shows; employment on uptrend, though far below normal.

TRADE TUNES EFFICIENCY GEAR

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—When all business in the United States is managed with something approaching the high degree of efficiency of our best conducted companies, great progress will have been made.

The automobile industry, which has been seeking during the current annual show week to make the public car conscious, has been better managed than most trades. The industry learned its lesson in the depression of 1920-21, when it was caught with huge piles of unbalanced inventories of raw materials. This time the industry has avoided that mistake and has done relatively well, in view of the drastic decline in effective demand for new vehicles.

Mr. Rukeyser

This year the industry has outdone itself in coaxing the hesitant to buy through the sound principle of offering more for less.

Under the leadership of Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., the president, General Motors Corporation has gone far in developing a technique for using scientific method in determining market prospects and consumer attitudes. Accordingly, the corporation has been able to forecast business conditions three or four months ahead sufficiently well to attune production schedules to actual demand, thus avoiding the pitfall of piling up accumulations of unwanted vehicles. Moreover, the company, in laying out its broad operating policies, undertakes to project prospects a year ahead, and it then revises such estimates quarterly as additional facts become available.

Mr. Sloan has a vast respect for facts and has been willing to lay out any reasonable sums for fact-finding purposes.

Some of the thoughtful leaders of the industry have felt for some time that the biggest stimulus to our buying would be a more cheerful view by individuals of their own economic prospects. This assumption has been statistically verified in an elaborate sampling of consumer attitudes throughout the country. Of those with funds, the optimists have been found to be more avid buyers than those who are still pessimistic. Those with a historical perspective as to past depressions and with some knowledge of hardships experienced by other countries have been found to be more optimistic than those without such background.

STEEL LAGGING ON SEASONAL UPTURN

By B. E. V. LUTY.

Demand for steel has increased only slightly since the first of the year and it cannot be said that the regular seasonal increase is as yet under way. The trade is somewhat disappointed by the delay, but is confident that there will be substantial improvement during the quarter.

Production of steel ingots this week has been at about 14 per cent of capacity against about 13 per cent in each of the two preceding weeks. The month is fully expected to run above December's 15.02 per cent average, but with such a poor start it cannot show much gain. February is expected to show a larger increase, with either that month or March passing last October's 19 per cent, the highest since May.

Increase in steel demand in the next few weeks is expected to come chiefly from miscellaneous sources, in small orders for light manufacturing, repair and upkeep work and some replenishment of stocks.

Among the large steel consuming lines the automobile industry is by far the best customer of the steel trade, as it is accounting for about 25 per cent of current steel production.

RAIL TAKINGS SMALL

While freight car loadings are furnishing a still more favorable augury than a few weeks ago there are no signs of railroads becoming more interested in purchases of steel. A small tonnage of rails is being rolled on old contracts and demand for track material is slightly heavier than in December. Regular purchases of rails are not expected until the usual season for laying rails is approached.

Fabricated structural steel lettings have been running light and prospects are not good, but business already on books promises a somewhat heavier flow of steel through the shops as the season advances.

Guesses are made that the year's tin plate production will run about one-fourth above that of last year. Specifications have been coming in rather slowly and production will be more concentrated in the second quarter than usual.

The steel trade adheres to its belief that apart from seasonal variations March is the natural month for the beginning of real emergence from depression and has strong hopes in that direction. In active times seasonal increase has usually ended by April 1, and thus that date is going to be an important one this year.

SEEK PRICE STABILITY

Efforts have been increased to stabilize the market on plain steel for structural fabricating, quite irregular for about two years past. Merchant bars have been firm at the regular price of 1.60 cents and for a year past wire products have made a remarkable record for stability. Tin plate is rigid after two seasons of price irregularities, while tubular goods and hot rolled strips are very steady.

An exception to the general showing in finished steel prices is furnished by sheets, the market in which has grown still more irregular, with openly recognized declines of $2 a ton in nearly all descriptions of sheets, while there is cutting in addition in some cases. Such measure of co-operation between sellers as existed recently appears to have disappeared, and it is suggested that the sheet market may not become stable again until the number of sellers has decreased.

The scrap market has been disappointing to date, as mills have not made expected purchases, only a few small lots being taken. On the basis of recent transactions, ordinary heavy melting steel is quotable at $8.00 as the dealers' buying price and $8.25 to $8.50 in sales to mills, while a lot of Pennsylvania Railroad scrap has brought $9.00 at mill.

WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—Bank clearings, for the first full week of the new year, are only slightly better than those of the closing weeks of December, losses compared with a year ago now are less severe than they have been in recent weeks, but in part this reflects some recession in the clearings in January, 1932. The total this week for leading cities in the United States, as reported to R. G. Dun & Co., was $4,407,955,000 and are 25.0 per cent under last year. At New York City the amount was $2,926,481,000, which was 28.4 per cent less, while the aggregate for the cities outside of New York, of $1,481,484,000 was 17.3 per cent smaller.

Conditions in New York and at some of the larger cities, particularly those in the West and on the Pacific coast, are the least satisfactory. Philadelphia again reports a small increase, and this week's clearings at Buffalo are in excess of last year's. Losses continue considerably smaller at St. Louis, Kansas City and Minneapolis, as well as at most of the Southern centers.

Figures for leading cities, showing increases and decreases as compared with the same period a year ago follow, totals in thousands:

	Week of Jan. 11	Decrease Per Cent
Boston	$ 210,000	19.2
Philadelphia	305,000	*1.7
Baltimore	53,239	20.1

RAYON'S PLANT OPERATIONS AT 100%

CLEVELAND, Jan. 14.—Preliminary report of Industrial Rayon Corporation for year ended December 31, 1932, shows net profit of $237,251 after depreciation, interest and federal taxes, equivalent to $1.64 a share on 144,299 shares of stock. This compares with $683,891 or $4.71 a share on 144,999 shares in 1931.

For quarter ended December 31, last, net income was $448,179 after charges and taxes, equal to $3.10 a share on 144,299 common share comparing with net loss of $96,11 in preceding quarter and net in come of $285,920, or $1.97 a sha on 144,999 shares in fourth quart of previous year.

PLANTS AT CAPACITY

Industrial Rayon made an about-face in its operations late in th summer, when, after a month shut-down, it started operating 50% capacity and then at 100% as demand for its products exhausted inventory and taxe production facilities to the utmo Both the Cleveland and Covin ton, Va., plants have operated the 100% level since that time.

PRICES STILL LOW

While the sudden comeback Rayon's earnings has been d chiefly to the heavy demand, an other important factor was th recent general increase in price ending the drastic decline of th past years. While present pri levels represent a recovery of on half the former reductions th are still considerably lower th the prices of even a year ago.

Industrial Rayon has continu to expand its capacity for clot. In the summer of 1931, the company first installed 100 knittin machines for rayon cloth manufacture. The move was so successful that the company is no operating 350 machines with a annual capacity for 6,000,00 pounds of cloth. The complete yarn output of the Clevelan plant is taken. The company starting construction of a $75,0 addition to its office buildin which will double the presen space.

Cloth production has tended help in the stabilization of oper tions, since the demand does n show as sharp fluctuations as d the demand for yarn.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

One of Pittsburgh's sons is betrothed to a New England daughter, with the news being announced today.

The Waldo Emerson Bucks, of Worcester, Mass., announce the engagement of their daughter, Eleanor, to Harry Ransom Davis, son of Mrs. Harry Phillips Davis and the late Dr. Harry Phillips Davis, of Wallingford street.

Dana Hall and Smith College took care of the education of the bride-to-be. And she's a member of the Worcester Junior League.

Mr. Davis is a member of the Worcester Club, Tatnuck Country Club and the Harvard Club of Boston and New York.

Power Travel

There's not going to be so much traveling, it would seem, as in former Januarys. Many may take brief trips to the South later on, but just now everyone almost is staying in Pittsburgh.

Fragile, white-haired Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., who is a leader in ever so many civic enterprises, is staying home, she tells me.

Wilhelmina Balken sails next week for Bermuda. And she'll not see Pittsburgh again until spring, she plans.

Honored at Yale

John Joseph Kennedy, Jr., of Pittsburgh, a senior at Yale, has been awarded a coveted honor—election to the Yale senior prom committee.

And Harry Joseph Miller, Jr., of Pittsburgh, has been named manager of the Yale Freshman Glee Club.

Eastern Wedding

The Walter Schleiters are in the East to attend the wedding of their daughter, Louise, and Frank Horne, of Conway, N. H., taking place this afternoon in the home of Louise's brother, Walter B. Schleiter, of New York.

Mrs. William Costin and Mrs. Frank B. Gordon are also in New York for the wedding, a very small ceremony.

Benefit Concert

Down in Sewickley smart women are always giving benefits, and one suspects that the unemployed in the Valley are better taken care of than those in any other district.

The latest plan is for a series of concerts with magnetic Louise Lerch Brien, former Metropolitan Opera Company member, who recently married Donald G. Brien, of Pittsburgh, as the soloist at the opening concert January 27 in the Guild Hall, Sewickley.

Assisting her will be Samuel Kliachko, first 'cellist in the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra.

Dates for Benefits

The Sewickley advisory committee, which has given so many benefits proving most popular, is in charge of the concerts, scheduled for February 3, 10 and 17, as well as January 27.

A. L. Robinson is chairman of the advisory committee. And the list of patronesses for the concert suggests the entire Sewickley social register.

Women Voters Leagues Face Busy Week

Mrs. J. J. Shuman, of Sheridan avenue, will be hostess to the Seventh, Tenth and Eleventh Ward League of Women Voters at her home on Monday. The University of Pittsburgh debaters will put on the program, taking for their discussion subject "Power vs. Ownership."

On Monday evening the Twentieth Ward League will have its meeting in the social rooms of the Episcopal church, Sherwood avenue and Ashlyn street. Miss Esther M. Smith, president of the Pittsburgh Teachers' Association, will talk on "What Can Harrisburg Do to Education," and Mrs. T. C. Pitzer will sing.

The Twenty-third Ward League will meet Tuesday evening in the Schiller School to hear the men's debating team of the University of Pittsburgh on "Power vs. Ownership."

At the Ben Avon League meeting on Wednesday in Mrs. Robert McKee's home, Church and Dickson avenues, the program will again be by the debaters.

The Dormont-Mt. Lebanon League has planned an evening meeting for Wednesday in the Dormont New Century Club, an open meeting, to which men are invited, and at which Mrs. John O. Miller will be the guest speaker. She will have for her subject "What About Our Legislature?"

The Forest Hills League meets on Friday in the Municipal Building at 2 o'clock to take up the study of borough politics and to hear a member of the borough council speak.

Sheraden Women Vote to 'Buy American'

The Women's Club of Sheraden unanimously resolved at the meeting yesterday to "Buy American." A resolution condemning the interference of politics in the city school system was also adopted and the women voted to urge City Council to make an appropriation that undernourished children may be fed by the schools.

Mrs. M. M. Redenbaugh, of the Joseph Horne Company, gave a delightful talk on "Home Furnishings Trends of the New Year" and displayed many samples of wallpaper and drapery fabrics. Piano solos were presented by Mrs. George Cobaugh.

On Friday evening the club will present a radio show in Langley High School, the admission to which will be either food or clothing, the same to be distributed among the less fortunate of the community. Those taking part in the show are artists from the local broadcasting stations.

Pittsburghers Register At Atlantic City Hotel

Dr. and Mrs. E. B. McCready and their daughter, Miss Delphine McCready, of Sheridan avenue, are registered at Chalfonte Haddon Hall, Atlantic City.

Mrs. A. Quinby Stewart, of Pittsburgh, is in New York at the Hotel New Weston.

Gossipy Chat With Nancy Jane

When starting out on a case, that fascinating woman leader who was in town last week, Mrs. Mary Breckenridge—head of the Frontier Nursing Service—was thrown from her horse, and her back was broken.

Mrs. Breckinridge still has to wear a brace. Her only complaint is that it's hard on her gowns.

Until she is well enough to exercise, she's cutting out sweets altogether.

After her husband and two children died, Mrs. Breckinridge took her maiden name, and started the Nursing Service in memory of her children.

She's the daughter of Grover Cleveland's Minister to Russia, granddaughter of John Cabell Breckinridge, vice president of the United States, with Buchanan; second cousin of Lawyer Henry Breckinridge, of Lindbergh baby kidnaping fame.

If a Kentucky mountain mother and her husband can not pay the Nursing Service's fee of five dollars for the delivery of a child, the mother can pay with five dollars' worth of quilting, or the man with five dollars' worth of work.

Noel Coward, appearing at the Nixon this week in his own play, "Design for Living," stopped business for 40 minutes at Brentano's when he stopped in. Customers and employes all listened and looked on.

Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby liked the play so well she's seen it twice so far this week!

Three Revolutions Grip World, Friday Club Told

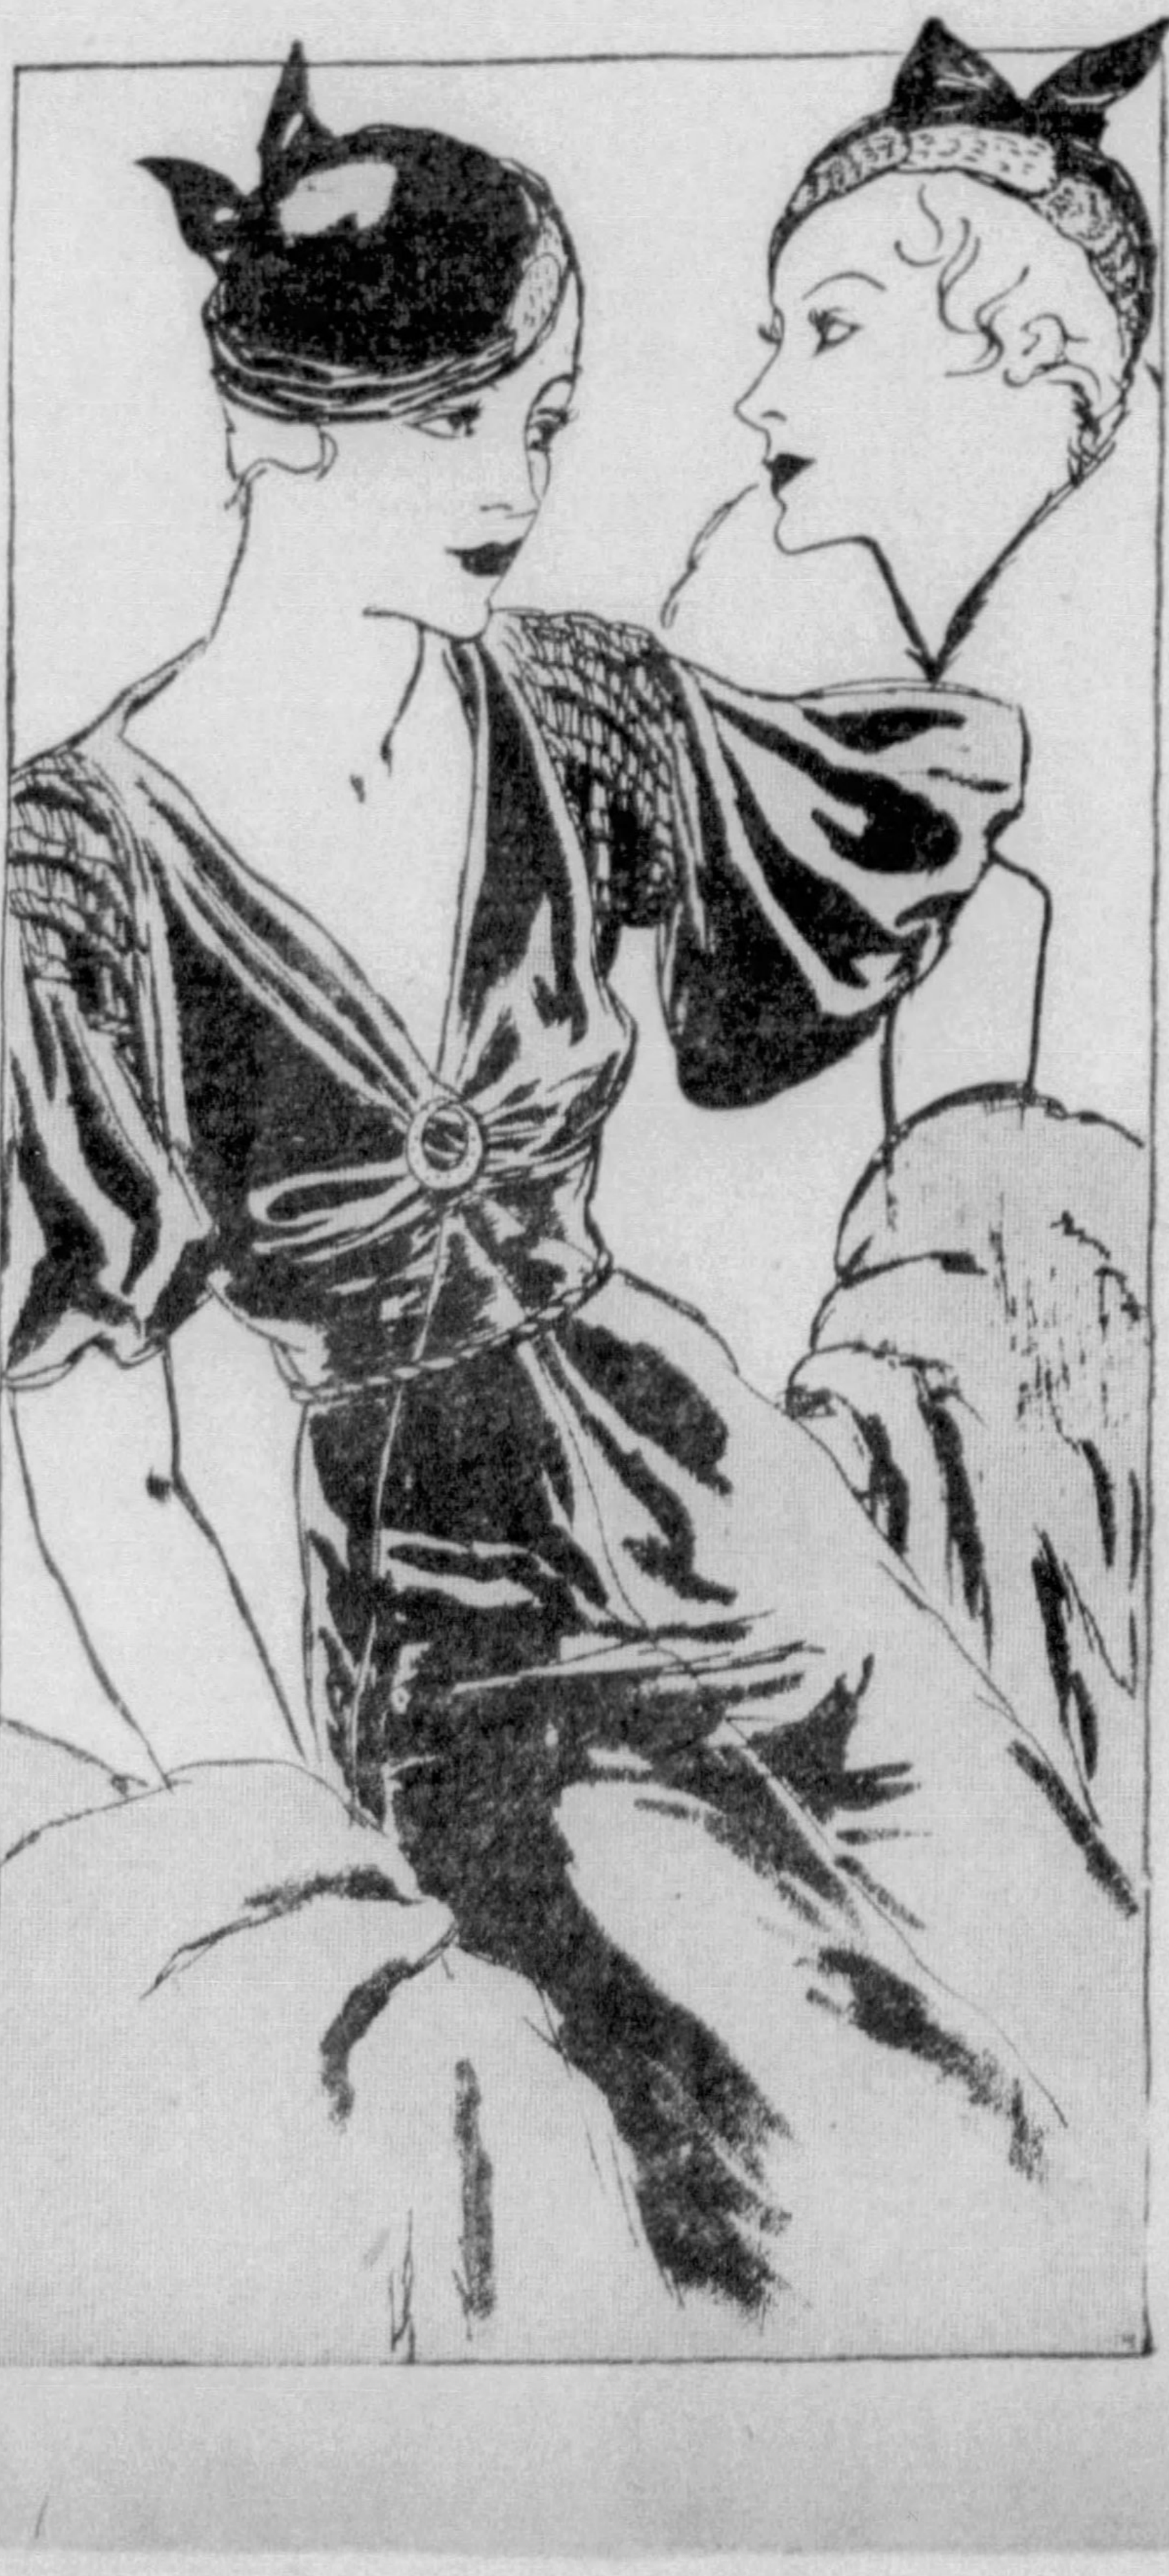
Addressing the Friday Morning Club yesterday, Dr. Harry Allen Overstreet, professor of philosophy in the College of the City of New York, defined a revolution from a psychologist's standpoint, as "a condition of mental change so rapid that minds are unable to adjust themselves." If the revolution is genuine something effectively new comes out of it, he added, as he went on to state that the world today is passing through three revolutions, technological, cultural and spiritual. Of the first, he said it would put the old order into the discard just as surely as steam had destroyed the old feudal system.

Nobody knows what to do with the cultural revolution, and its incredible riches, he said, declaring later that man must learn how to enjoy himself, how to use his leisure wisely. Dr. Overstreet holds that the spiritual revolution has been from a philosophy of love to a philosophy of power with every man for himself in an incredibly cruel world.

This is one of the most interesting and pregnant periods the world has ever seen and there is hope, he declared. He mentioned diversion of moneys from production to consumption as one thing needed and he advocated a graduated income tax system with a ceiling. The small income that is all used for living should not be taxed, he declared.

CONTRASTING ACCENTS USED IN NEW PARISENNE COLOR SCHEME

—Sketched in Paris—



Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 14.—The 1933 way of combining colors in a single costume is, as Paris sees it, quite different from any formal fashion schedule. For a time, the all-one-color costume—green dress, coat, hat and bag all matching—was the correct one; then Paris took up the double standard in colors, putting dark accents of gloves, bag or belt on a light costume, or pale accents on a dark one.

* * *

THE PRESENT system is one which places contrasting accents against a large color background. Contrary to the former idea, the new plan is to leave the costume as nearly as possible to one color, putting all the accent in a single spot.

* * *

FOR EXAMPLE, a costume of brown dress, with matching coat, hat and shoes, will leave the bag to a beige contrast, with the gloves choosing between either brown or beige.

* * *

IN THE costume sketched today there is an even more subtle division of color. Maggy-Rouff's red velvet dress is worn with a black hat which places all color in three little flat feather ornaments crossing the front—one of red, one of white, one of velvet. The hat is from Molyneux and is also of velvet.

* * *

NOTE HOW the hat, at one side, is entirely black, concentrating all color from the center-front to the left.

Mt. Lebanon's Community Library Soon Grows To 8,000 Volumes

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

The Mt. Lebanon community library which was started in November already numbers 8,000 volumes and a house-to-house canvass for books will be held shortly by the Library Association. About 200 books are loaned out every day at the library which is conducted in the Municipal Building.

The Lions' Club really inaugurated the library movement, but it has had the active co-operation of nine other bodies in the townsip—the South Hills College Club, the Mt. Lebanon Woman's, the Woman's Fortnightly Review, the American Legion, the Kiwanis Club, Civic League, the Community Association, the school board and the board of commissioners.

Mrs. J. V. Evans, Jr., a former librarian, is the Woman's Club representative in the Library Association and, with Miss Katherine Peoples, a recent graduate of the Library School here, is donating her services and conducting the library on the newest and most approved lines.

From fines that have been collected a rental shelf of new books has been established. Mystery and fiction are in demand by the younger patrons, but there has been an astonishing number of requests for books on philosophy, psychology and economics, particularly by unemployed men.

With the exception of the books on the rental shelf, all the volumes have been donated, one person contributing 35 volumes, some of which are unusually valuable. Magazines are carried, too, and there is a complete file of the National Geographic for 12 years.

Club Women Laud Editorial on Reciprocity

Pittsburgh's thinking clubwomen are enthusiastic in their indorsement of the Pan-American reciprocity editorial which appeared in Thursday's Sun-Telegraph.

Mrs. W. E. Brosius, president of the Pittsburgh City Council of Parent-Teacher Associations, and a past president of the Crafton Woman's Club, says:

"I commend the spirit of the Pan-American reciprocity editorial in Thursday's Sun-Telegraph. Most heartily do I believe that reciprocity between the two continents should be 'not of markets alone, but of heart and sympathy and mutual help,' as the editorial puts it."

Mrs. Sydney L. Kaufman, southwestern district chairman of international relations in the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, said:

"The Pan-American reciprocity editorial has my hearty approval, and incidentally I am particularly glad that Mr. Hearst is including Central and South America in his Buy America Plan."

Mrs. Alfred C. Ackenheil, president of the Langley Parent-Teacher Association:

"I am glad to see that in Thursday's editorial the Sun-Telegraph stresses the need for 'a deeper understanding of the feelings and the interests' of the two Americas, and, 'an open-minded, studious and constructive approach to our mutual problems and common opportunities'."

Mrs. Richard B. Perry, corresponding secretary of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women:

"I think we have been neglecting our possibilities for trade in South America, and I can see every reason for cultivating reciprocal relations between our own country and our neighbors to the south of us. Your editorial very lucidly sets forth the reasons for doing so."

The editorial was so worthwhile that she cut it out for preservation, Mrs. Charles F. Goldsthwait, president of the Mt. Lebanon Woman's Club, reports. She says:

"If we as a people should live up to the ideals expressed in that editorial we could accomplish something distinctly worth while; we would be taking a long step towards eliminating those things which all true women everywhere hate — war and intrigue and exploitation of innocent people."

PERSISTENCE CARRIES BOXER TO TOP

Ben Jeby

MORRIS BENJAMIN JEBALTOWSKY, known in the ring as Ben Jeby, cannot have a clear claim to the world middleweight championship until he has met and defeated Marcel Thil, of France, but he surely was an impressive fighter in winning the New York Boxing Commission's version of the 160-pound title by a technical knockout over Frankie Battaglia last night in the twelfth round. Few battlers have come back to stop men who once put them away for the count, and, even with that side of it left out, Jeby had to show real championship stuff to beat the hardest-hitting middleweight of the present day and one of the toughest millers now operating in any class.

Jeby's success shows what can be accomplished by persistence in the face of seemingly hopeless handicaps. When the Jewish lad tried to break in as a professional in 1928 after winning 19 out of 20 amateur bouts he was laughed out of the gymnasium for his clumsiness. Even his manager, Hymie Caplin, tried to give him the air. But Jeby refused to be dropped, and he refused to quit. He had a granite chin and a stout heart; he took everything opponents could give him and handed it back to the best of his ability, and he kept on plodding and improving until today he's at the top of the heap, a shining example of what can be accomplished by never giving up.

THOUGH CHARLEY ROOT, of the Cubs, is telling Chicago people that he will not be surprised if the White Sox win the American League pennant. Al Simmons says there isn't a chance.

Simmons laughs at pennant predictions for the Senators, the A's and all others except the Yankees. He says the Yanks will be 25 games ahead of the field by the last of July.

SIMMONS ALSO SCOFFS at comparisons of Bob Grove and Vernon Gomez as southpaw pitchers. He says that Grove gets the decision easily; that there hasn't been a hurler in years like the ace of the Macks as measured by ability and capacity for work.

On the other hand, Simmons says Gomez is one of the pitchers against whom he likes to hit. Al declares the Yankee southpaw is not the invincible flinger that his record would indicate, explaining that he has behind him a sweet-hitting club to which a deficit of a few runs is only something to be made up at a minute's notice.

MAJOR LEAGUE SURVEYS have shown the magnates to be divided in their estimates as to the size of this year's holdout crop, following the slashing of many salaries. Some admit that they expect more balks than usual when the players receive their new contracts within the next week, while others express the belief that the holdout army will be no larger than in prosperous years. Among the latter class of clubowners the feeling is strong that the players can be convinced they are lucky to have jobs at any kind of wages. It is contended, besides, that the depression has taken away from the athletes their most effective holdout weapon of earlier seasons, the threat to retire from baseball and go into business. Going into business isn't fashionable right now.

Hack Wilson

BROOKLYN FANS ARE speculating as to the sort of response the club owners will get from two members of the Dodgers in particular. One is Outfielder Hack Wilson. Last year Hack pulled down $16,500, but it is said his 1933 contract will call for a 20 per cent cut.

The other is Pitcher Dazzy Vance. The one-time smoke ball king drew the same salary as Wilson for last season, but he is getting an even heavier reduction than Hack, the directors remembering that Vance won only 12 games in 1932 and lasted the route just nine times.

SOME PLAYERS WHO have been chronic holdouts in the past on the chance of chiseling a few hundred dollars extra, with nothing to be lost if they failed to get away with it, are seeing things in a different light. Gordon Cobbledick reports among this number a Cleveland pastimer always known as a tough guy to sign.

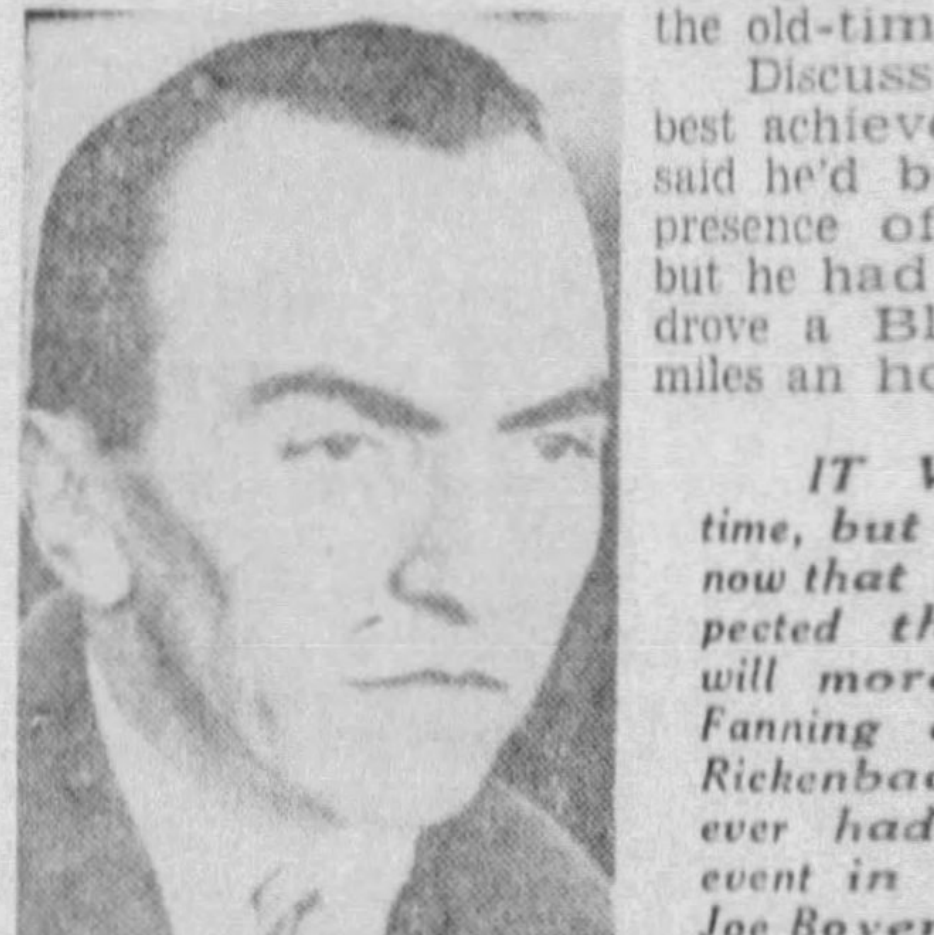
"I wouldn't want to have my pay cut to half what it was," this player is quoted, "but I'm not going to argue over any reduction within reason. They can cut me one-third and I'll take it like a little man, because I'm afraid that if I threaten to quit baseball they'll tell me to go ahead."

THE ROSENBLUM CELTICS, the gypsies of professional basketball, are working along lines of strict economy as they roam about the country playing all their games on the road. They chipped in and bought an old $3,500 automobile that had been marked down to $200, and they're doing all their traveling in the ancient bus, saving a driver's pay by having Nat Hickey, the guard, fill the part of a playing chauffeur. They've got a playing manager, too, in Joe Lapchick, the center, to save another share of the intake. Lapchick boasts that he has been gypped only once. That was in a little Ohio town, where a visiting promoter ran out with all the receipts between halves.

THE SCENE OF a basketball game between Duquesne and Pitt is no place for persons with weak hearts. The nerves of 3,500 fans will require some time for a complete recovery from the excitement of last night's dramatic finish. The Dukes were the better club and excelled in all-around play by a wider margin than their victory by a single point would appear to indicate.

Pitt and Carnegie will have to do some tall fighting to keep them from hanging on to the city championship. But the Panthers' great finish spelled class that gives promise of big things later on, and, with Carnegie going right on winning, the title will not be decided until Pittsburghers have been treated to a series not surpassed for close competition in any college race in the country.

THE SUGGESTED POSSIBILITY that in his world record attempt at Daytona Beach next month Sir Malcolm Campbell may boost his automobile speed mark to 300 miles an hour, from the present figures of 253.96 miles, makes some of the old-time racing drivers gasp.



Eddie Rickenbacker

Discussing with John Kieran his own best achievements, Col. Eddie Rickenbacker said he'd be ashamed to mention it in the presence of any of the present-day stars, but he had thought he was flying when he drove a Blitzen Benz at the rate of 134 miles an hour at Daytona Beach in 1914.

IT WAS A world record at that time, but Rickenbacker says he realizes now that he was only crawling. It is expected that Campbell, 19 years later, will more than double those figures. Fanning about auto racing in general, Rickenbacker said the greatest race he ever had seen was the Indianapolis event in 1922. "Ralph de Palma and Joe Boyer went 108 laps, more than half of the 500-mile distance, practically wheel and wheel," he recalled. "Neither would take back an inch. You couldn't have put a go-cart between them at any time. I thought they'd both be killed.

MEN PLAYERS SHIFTED BY COMMITTEE

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—A wholesale shakeup of the first 10 in both men and women's singles has been made by the ranking committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association in its recommendations for National rankings for 1932.

The lists, to be acted on by the National convention of the U. S. L. T. A., next month, are headed by the California holders of the American championships, H. Ellsworth Vines, Jr., for the second straight year among the men, and Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, for the first time among the women.

GEORGE LOTT DROPS

Otherwise, only five of the 1931 first ten among the women are given the ranking for 1932, while in the men's ranks, George M. Lott, Jr., No. 2 in 1931, is dropped to No. 11 for 1932, and seven of the others are shifted.

Wilmer Allison, semi-finalist against Henri Cochet in the Nationals and an outstanding player on the United States Davis Cup team, was rewarded with an advance from No. 9 to second place behind Vines. He was followed by Clifford Sutter, advanced from No. 6; Sydney B. Wood, Jr., advanced from No. 7; Francis X. Shields, dropped from No. 3; Lester Stoefen, advanced from No. 15; Gregory S. LEOPARDS DROP MITINGER

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 14.—Bob Mitinger, local attorney, and for the past three years assistant football coach at Lafayette College, has been dismissed by Herb McCracken, head coach. Mitinger yesterday said his dismissal came as a complete surprise. He had no intention of giving up his position at Lafayette until notified by McCracken that he was no longer wanted.

Mitinger issued the following statement:

"I did not resign, nor was I requested to do so. I was simply notified by a letter from McCracken, head coach at Lafayette College, that a new assistant coach of football would be appointed for the season of 1933."

Mitinger graduated from Lafayette in 1924.

His successor will be Cullen (Fats) Gorley, a University of Pittsburgh guard, in 1920, 1921 and 1922. Gorley was a former line coach at Lafayette.

TURTLE CREEK WINS

The Turtle Creek Union High School's crack swimming team added another victim to its list for the season yesterday by defeating Clairton, 29 to 26, in a dual meet at Turtle Creek.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE MAN ROOT—The wild ginseng, which the Chinese consider a cure-all in the nature of a universal elixir of life, will fetch fabulous prices in the China of today. The Orientals believe that the ginseng lying in the earth for countless ages will absorb the vital substances of life and slowly grow into human likeness. It formerly was sacred to the Emperor of China, and particularly virtuous roots easily will fetch from $2,000 to $10,000 today.

WOOD, RUNYAN TIE FOR LEAD

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—Craig Wood was within reach of a grand slam of the golf tournament of the Californias today.

The big blond professional from Deal, N. J., with three victories in little more than a month, was tied for the lead in the Agua Caliente $7,500 open as play started on the last 18 of 72 holes. His stroke total for 54 holes was 217.

Stepping along with him in the vanguard was Paul Runyan from White Plains, N. Y., while Leo Diegel, making his fourth try for top prize money in his own tournament, and John Perelli, a youngster from Beverly Hills, Cal., followed a stroke behind with 218.

There was every indication of a close finish today, with Al Espinosa, Akron, O., and Horton Smith Oak Park, Ill., only two strokes away from the front ranks with 219.

Still in the running for the title and the $1,500 first prize money were Dick Metz, Wood's assistant at the Hollywood Country Club, Deal; Abe Espinosa, Chicago, brother of Al, and Eddie Loos, another of Chicago's veteran campaigners. Each had 220.

Close on their heels traveled Charles Guest still another of Deal's good golfers, representing the Deal Golf and Country Club; Ray Mangrum, the Waco, Tex., youth who led through the first half of the tourney, and John Dawson, Chicago amateur. Each had 221.

By JULIUS LEVIN

Schenley and South, in Section I, and Perry and Allegheny, in Section II, are out in front in the City League championship basketball chase and if they continue to display the form they have to date, should successfully repulse any attempts to dislodge them.

Yesterday, Schenley put a temporary end to the ambitions of Connelley, defeating the Traders, 29 to 24, in a thrilling battle on the Traders' floor. The teams were tied at the half, but the primed Bellefielders spurted in the third period to take the lead and hold it for the remainder of the game.

In other Section I battles, Allderdice defeated Fifth Avenue, 32 to 23, and Westinghouse downed Peabody, 19 to 17. South was idle.

Over in Section II, Perry made it three in a row, beating Langley, 34 to 14. Oliver broke into the victory column by whipping Carrick, 26 to 20. South Hills ran wild against Allegheny Vocational, 38 to 15.

The majority of favorites came through the W. P. I. A. L. battles. Braddock, defending champion, downed Edgewood in a hard-fought game, 21 to 15. Rankin stopped Scott High's victory streak by beating the Reedmen, 32 to 24. New Castle took over New Brighton, 28 to 22; Ambridge walloped Midland, 42 to 12; Aliquippa downed Beaver, 19 to 10; Monessen won over California, 22 to 16; Homestead took over McKeesport, 29 to 16; Leetsdale tripped Aspinwall, 20-8; Bellevue downed Ben Avon, 42 to 9; Scottdale upset Connellsville, 26 to 24; Swissvale defeated Turtle Creek, 39 to 18; Canonsburg nosed out Waynesburg, 13 to 11, in an extra period game, and North Union bumped Redstone, 18 to 9.

Brown To Buy Part Interest In Blues

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—Joe E. Brown, film comedian, has become the third man in the deal for the purchase of the Kansas City American Association baseball club.

The other two, E. Lee Keyser, owner of the Des Moines Western League Club, and Tris Speaker, former major league star, said Brown had agreed to purchase a third interest in the club if negotiations go through.

Keyser and Speaker are carrying on negotiations with attorneys for the Muehlebach estate, present club owners.

MILLER WINS TITLE BOUT

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—Freddie Miller, slender southpaw from Cincinnati's Rhineland, today at last had caught up with the will-o'-the-wisp featherweight championship.

On his third try for the title—at least as far as the National Boxing Association is concerned—he collected himself after a bad start to take the crown from Tommy Paul, of Buffalo, N. Y., by a decision victory in 10 rounds at the Chicago Stadium. Friday the Thirteenth may have had something to do with it, but Miller's skillful campaign, once he was started, would have taken care of the situation on any day of the week.

It was Paul's first battle in defense of the title he won in an N. B. A. tournament at Detroit last year, and for three rounds, he appeared thoroughly capable of hanging on to it. Walking away from Miller's southpaw shots, he fired away with a straight right to chin and jaw that earned him a substantial margin. He reached the peak of his effort in the third when the right sent Miller flying into the ropes, well shaken.

In the fourth, however, Miller shifted to boxing. His jabbing right kept Paul busy, and a swinging left to head and body produced punishment to slow the champion down.

The decision of the two judges and Referee Tommy Thomas was close but unanimous.

Miller tried twice to take the championship away from Bat Battalino, and for one reason and another, failed. In the first meeting the Hartford Italian won convincingly, and in the second, the bout was stopped and declared no contest.

GORILLA JONES WINS

CLINTON, Ia., Jan. 14.—(AP.)—Gorilla Jones, Akron, O., Negro middleweight, knocked out Young Stuhley, Kewanee, Ill., in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round boxing contest here last night.

PANTHERS DROP THRILLER TO DUKES, 26-25

By JESS CARVER

It is risky business to poke one's nose too deep into the record book when seeking to dope these college basketball games, especially when they concern such rivals as Pitt and Duquesne.

Today, the Dukes are congratulating themselves on being safely over the first hurdle in their path to the city's college title, a title they won for the first time a year ago, but only by the narrow margin of a single point did they eke out a triumph over Pitt's scrappy Golden Panthers in a feverish battle before a packed house of 4,000 in the Stadium Pavilion last night. The score was 26 to 25, and the Dukes never put in two more shaky minutes than the last 120 seconds of the tussle.

DUKES FAVORITES

Chick Davies' charges entered the game the favorites, and for the first half bore up nobly under the strain of playing as such. Pitt was handicapped by having to turn a new combination loose against the Red and Blue, and the Golden Cats, with their star center, Claire Cribbs, riding the bench, were unable to click. Cribbs suffered an ankle sprain against Temple last week.

But in the second half, led by Slim Wainio, a frail appearing sophomore, with the eye of a Robin Hood, the Panthers carried the fight to the Dukes, and with a brilliant rally in the last two minutes and 50 seconds of play, pulled up to within the point that separated the teams at the finish.

As it was, Charley Hughes, subbing at a guard, let one fly from past the center of the court as the timer's gun was raised for the game-ending shot that missed by a hair's breadth of putting the Panthers out in front.

While the entire game was filled with feverish action, the real drama was packed into the last two minutes.

The Dukes led at the half, 17 to 7, a scoring splurge by Paul Birch, the lad who defied the date by wearing No. 13 on his jersey, accounting for the majority of the champions' points.

The 10-point advantage of the Dukes failed to awe the Panthers and they went right after their rivals as the second half opened. Duquesne made good on just enough free throws to keep a tantalizing lead, and with three minutes to go, they led by 26 to 19 . . . seven big points . . . the old big seven.

WAINIO BIG STAR

Skippy Hughes, who played with his infected elbow in a specially made protector, designed and constructed by Trainer Bud Moore, faded into the corner and sent a goal swishing through the hoop. His brother Charley, first dancing through the Red and Blue defense, sank a short one and then popped another from away out in front to put the Panthers into the ball game. Then Wainio just about caused the crowd to blow the roof off the Pavilion with a neat one from the side to make it 26 to 25.

There were nine seconds left to play, and cagy Doc Carlson rushed a substitute, Whitey Wilson, to the officials' table, but the timekeeper didn't see him in time and fired the gun.

It looked for a second or two as if a nice riot was due to break. Doc Carlson had trailed Wilson to the table and Chick Davies leaped from the bench and came rushing over. Chick was ready to toss punches, in fact, he made a threatening gesture at the timekeeper, but cooler heads prevailed, as cooler heads have a habit of doing, and trouble was averted.

Wainio, with five field goals and a foul, was the high individual scorer. The Panthers were beaten at the foul line. They scored 10 field goals to eight for the Dukes, but the officials called 17 fouls on Pitt and only 14 on the Dukes, who made 10 of their charity tosses count. The lineup:

Duq.—26	G.	F.	Pt.	Pitt—25.	G.	F.	Pt.
Birch,f.	3	2	8	Smith,f-c.	0	2	2
Feldman,f.	1	3	5	W.Hughes,f.	2	0	4

Moore,g.	0	1	1	C.Hughes,g.	2	0	4
Brenner,f.	2	1	5	Wilson,f.	0	0	0
				Wainio,f.	5	1	11
Totals	8	10	26	Totals	10	5	25

Score at half—Duquesne 17, Pitt 7. Missed fouls—Duquesne 7 (Birch 3, Feldman 2, McDougall 1, Reiter 1); Pitt 9 (W. Hughes 1, Wainio 2, Ochsenhirt 1, McCamant 5). Disqualified on four personal fouls—Feldman, Duquesne; Ochsenhirt, Pitt. Referee—Beggs Snyder. Umpire—Dan Daugherty. Time of halves—20 minutes.

Pitt's freshmen passers had an easy time of it with the Duquesne yearlings, winning, 31 to 14, in a preliminary.

Tech Wins Third

Max Hannum's Carnegie Tech Tartans still are in the unbeaten class in college basketball. Last night, while Pitt and the Dukes were tussling, the Skibos coasted to a 30 to 21 victory over Wash-Jeff in the Tartan gymnasium. The Skibos made merry at the expense of the Presidents in the first half, rolling up a 16-point advantage at 21 to 5. The Prexies

TUNNEY DESCRIBES VISIT TO DEMPSEY AFTER VICTORY

UNPOPULARITY COMES WITH TITLE WIN

SYNOPSIS

The fight's on at Philly, Gene has described how he believes he just missed a one-round K. O. with his first hard right-hand smash, which landed on Dempsey's cheek "just too high." Tunney has told how "Jack was very ineffective after that," but Dempsey did score "one hard blow during the whole contest"—a terrific left hook to the "Adam's apple" in the sixth round which Gene admits feeling "for several days."

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

When the decision was rendered at the end of the tenth round, Jack with the assistance of Gene Normile, Philadelphia Jack O'Brien and another handler, was helped to the center of the ring to shake hands with his conqueror. It was a splendid gesture, and his muttered message of "All right, Gene! Good luck!" was most touching. He was on the verge of collapse.

Gene Tunney

This fight attracted the largest crowd that ever attended a sports event up to that time; 145,000 came from all corners of the globe.

After the excitement in the dressing-room subsided, I went to a small hotel, and had several pots of tea. At the end of a few hours' conversation, I went to bed tired and weary. I was soon asleep.

AWAKENS CHAMPION

Upon awakening in the morning, I wondered if the proceedings of the night before had been a dream. It was hard to believe that I was the world heavyweight champion. My thoughts went back to the early days in France; to the later struggle in getting started after my discharge from military service. I thought of the first time I met Jack Dempsey, coming across the Hudson on a Jersey Central ferryboat. He was gracious, kindly and mirthful. I was a young, unknown kid, just starting. Though there was only 11 months' difference in our ages, it seemed like the king and the page-boy. He was generous, democratic and invincible. He looked the part of the great champion he was. The consciousness of his position did not keep him from sitting with the unknown beginner during the 20 minutes it took to cross the river. That was the first impression I had of Jack Dempsey, and the most lasting. I pictured him as he was led from his corner battered, bruised and blind from his own blood to the center of the ring to congratulate his conqueror. What a contrast!

VISITS DEMPSEY

I thought that one day a young pugilist would dethrone me as I had Dempsey. I felt how sincere would be my gratitude if, on the following day when all the shouts and cheers were for my conqueror, he would take a few minutes out to drop in to see me. I decided that, though the world might have started forgetting the king that was, I would drop in some time during the day to pay my respects to the fellow that had been so thoughtful and considerate to the kid on the ferryboat one day back in 1920. He had still one championship that had not been at stake at the Sesquicentennial stadium. He was still that champion to me.

When I told my desire to a friend, he said:

"What a great newspaper story that will make!"

I said:

"No, unless it can be done quickly, it won't be done at all."

Some time after lunch, I went to the Adelphia Hotel, where Dempsey's party made its headquarters. I was ushered up to a suite of rooms. After passing through four or five doors, I found myself in a large sitting-room. In it was Gene Normile, disheveled and weeping, in a silk dressing gown. He was in his bare feet. Before him was a half-empty bottle of Scotch whisky. Tommy Laird, a San Francisco newspaper man, and Jerry the Greek, Dempsey's trainer, were the only others I knew. I was not in the room two minutes before I experienced for the first time the resentment that some of the experts and followers of boxing felt over my defeat of Dempsey.

JACK BADLY MARKED

Jerry, in his broken English, kept repeating:

"You canna' licka the chump."

He continued to repeat this until Gene Normile made it plain to Jerry that he would not have "a guest of his insulted in such a way." Poor Jerry was heart-broken over Dempsey's defeat. Normile sat there, a pathetic figure in contrast with the contented, humorous and witty fellow whom I had first met in California, who, upon telling me that Wills had no chance to get a match with Dempsey, said:

"I put the sacks in on the spade" (meaning that he had eliminated Wills as far as consideration from Dempsey went).

There was great disorder and confusion in the room. Somebody had gone to another part of the hotel to inform Dempsey that I had stepped in to see him. The messenger came back and asked me to follow him. I climbed a flight of stairs, walked through a long hall with several turns and was led into a room that was empty. I was advised to sit down. Dempsey would be in presently. In about five minutes Jack came into the room from the hall. He looked the worse for wear. Unless my face after the first Greb match was as bad a looking sight as his, I never have seen its equal. He seemed heart-broken over the loss of his title. Hearing from me that he had hit me some hard blows, he seemed to cheer up a bit.

ADVICE FROM EX-CHAMP

As I was leaving, Jack said wearily:

"Gene, your troubles are just beginning, whether you know it or not. Every time you turn around you'll find a process server."

I took my leave with the thought that I had never known a more gracious loser. I was soon to learn that Dempsey was right. Not to stint myself with regard to troubles, I made mistake after mistake. I seemed to enjoy making them.

At one time I had four lawsuits against me aggregating $2,150,000.

The first three, two blackmailers and a bootlegger, left the jurisdiction of the state after instituting proceedings. The fourth, a bookmaker, went to trial and, after hearing evidence for 10 days, the jury returned a verdict in my favor in 20 minutes.

A good lawyer is more important to a champion nowadays than all the managers. I am convinced that had the law firm of Chadbourne, Stanchfield and Levy not taken over my affairs, at the behest of Dudley Field Malone, who had to return to his European practice, the parasites would have left me penniless.

UNPOPULARITY DAWNS

The following day, at a luncheon in my first contact with metropolitan newspapermen after the fight, I made the error of criticizing their attitude toward my victory in a smarty-smarty manner. This may have been justified, but it certainly was unwise. Practically overnight I became the most unpopular of all the heavyweight champions. Had I been at all diplomatic this friction with the newspapermen might have been avoided. Moreover, looking back from this distance, I could have been a more gracious winner. I goaded and gloated. I richly deserved what I got. There seems to be a curious attitude in public psychology with regard to champions. Most of the champions become unpopular. None to my knowledge, however, ever received the almost general disapproval as rapidly as I did. This was new to me.

I got my first real demonstration of it in Madison Square Garden about two weeks after winning the championship. The Metropolitan Boxing Writers' Association presented belts to both Dempsey and me emblematic of the world heavyweight championship on this occasion.

JEERED BY FANS

They had not been able to make the presentation to Dempsey while he was champion because of his ineligibility in the State of New York, which forbade his getting into a ring anywhere in the state.

Dempsey, who exactly six weeks earlier was actually booed out of Madison Square Garden because of Harry Wills' presence, now, as an ex-champion, was cheered. I, his conqueror, was jeered.

Before I left the ring I had planned a psychological defense for all future jeers. Climbing through the ropes, I was unable to suppress a smile.

I had determined that for the next booing I would get 50 cents of every dollar the booers paid for the privilege. In the future there would be no free boos.

I never entered a boxing ring again until I retired unless I was given 50 per cent of the gate receipts! I broke this rule once or twice away from New York.

Tunney's next chapter will tell how he overcame "a martyr complex," how he "suffered" through 14 weeks as a vaudeville "thespian," how ugly rumors followed that Philadelphia fight and how "the possibility of becoming punch drunk haunted me for weeks" as the result of a training camp accident when preparing for the second Demysey battle.

COLLEGES GIRD FOR BATTLE

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—Rallying from the loss of the Poughkeepsie Regatta, first of the nation's great intercollegiate sports extravaganzas before the sustained drive of depression, Eastern colleges have thrown up a determined and almost united defense around the remainder of their annual athletic fixtures.

A survey of Eastern colleges by the Associated Press shows only the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League tottering in the wake of the annual 38-year-old regatta, due chiefly to Cornell's recent decision to abandon all but basketball during the remainder of the school year.

Everywhere else, although rigid economy is in evidence on all sides, the second-line trenches, with a few minor exceptions, will be maintained.

Syracuse, dropping crew, baseball and la crosse, has an interesting idea for an informal baseball circuit to include Cornell, Colgate and a host of small colleges nearby, with a 25 cents admission paying the way.

Probably the most courageous display is that of Franklin and Marshall where the boys are taking on baseball for the first time.

They made their big lead stand good in the second period and Coach Hannum was able to give his entire squad a workout.

Leiber, highly touted Wash-Jeff forward was so well guarded that he failed to ring up a single field goal. Eurcius and Johnson each scored two field goals for the Red and Black. The lineup:

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Handball competition dominates the inter-club sport card this afternoon as tournament play at both squash and tennis at the Pittsburgh Golf Club diverts attention from Class A milling in Pittsburgh Squash Racquets Association loop. Glove stars, however, will see action in both sections of their bi-divisional City circuit, while squash racqueters of the "B" wheel hold portion of the stage in absence of their topflight brethren.

The handball schedule sends Y. M. H. A. to P. A. A. and Y. M. C. A. to Keystone in the "A" sector, while the "B" performers simply reverse this bill for their afternoon's activity. The Y. M. H. A. first squad, headed by Lou Alman and Dave Olbum, and the Y. M. C. A. troupe, with Steve Meyers as leading man, are favored to come through with follow-up triumphs to their impressive inaugural wins of last Saturday.

Meanwhile in Class B, Eddie Roche rushes his Winged Head crew into a tough one across the block at the Y. M. H. A. The Red and Gray and the Bellefield contingents are deadlocked for the initial post in their division. The K. A. C.-Downtown Y fray looms as anyone's tussle.

With P. A. A. and the Keystoners fighting it out for the apex of the "B" squash racquets heap, results of today's matches will merit attention. The Winged Headers, probably minus Jack Beatty, whose time has been occupied with tennis and the arrival of a new son the past week, must entertain Charley Woods and his clever Edgeworth quintet, while Keystone is at home to the tail-end Pittsburgh Golf Clubbers.

JOE RANDALL KNOCKS OUT JARRELL

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Tiger Joe Randall, Negro welterweight, of Elizabeth, came back to the wars at the Arena, on the North Side, last night, following a considerable layoff, and proved conclusively that Pee Wee Jarrell, the Fort Wayne Harlequin, is not Gracie Allen's lost brother.

He proved it by punching the Pee Wee, a favorite with the local fans, into a state of collapse in the arms of Referee Al Grayber, in the eighth round, after having dropped him four times for counts of nine, twice each in the fourth and final rounds. The battle was scheduled for 10 rounds.

TIGER TOO STRONG

Randall was entirely too strong and too hard a puncher for Jarrell. He was all business and paid scant attention to Jarrell's banter, which was more restricted than in any battle he has fought here. The Pee Wee just barely got up to beat the count the first time he was floored and had to clinch until his head cleared, and then he was dropped again, but he finished the round and came up fairly fresh for the fifth, during which he was accidentally struck low. He did not take a rest, but Randall was warned by the referee. He was badly spent when a right dropped him in the eighth, and the final knockdown resulted from a left to the jaw. His seconds had to work hard to bring him around in his corner after the referee stopped the bout via the technical knockout route.

SECOND KAYO HERE

The kayo defeat was the second for Jarrell here. He was beating Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, of Memphis, all of the way until a right to the jaw flattened him in the eighth round of a bout at Motor Square Garden. He has beaten Davy Grove twice and Freddie Edwards in other bouts here.

Frank Novak, North Side heavyweight, won the referee's decision over Al Gatchell, of Cleveland, in a slow, but earnestly fought, eight-round semi-final; Harry Lennox, of Cumberland, registered well in beating Al Farone, of the West End, in the second six-rounder, boxing nicely and scoring a knockdown for a count of nine in the second round, and Tony DiPiero, former Duquesne University light-heavyweight, and Chuck Mullins, of Lawrenceville, fought a referee's draw in the opener.

It was announced Billy Holt will box an opponent to be named in the main bout at the Arena next week, with his stablemate, Jackie Wilson, meeting Ross Fields, of Weirton, W. Va., again in another 10-rounder. Fields recently won by a technical knockout over Wilson at New Castle when Jackie received a badly cut ear in the tenth round.

DUBLINSKY DUE TODAY

Harry Dublinsky, Milwaukee lightweight, is expected in town tonight for his 10-round windup at Motor Square Garden Monday night with Frankie Bojarski, of Erie, subbing for Battling Gizzy. Al Farone suffered a cut left eye in his bout at the Arena last night and will not be able to box Jerry Clements in the opening number at the Garden. Red Bush and the Alabama Kid are in the first 10-rounder, and Johnny Riske and Red Bruce box the second preliminary.

BEN JEBY WINS BY KNOCKOUT

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—As far as the New York State Athletic Commission is concerned, Ben Jeby, stolid, walloping East Side boxer, today is middleweight champion of the world.

Jeby last night chopped down Frank Battaglia, star Canadian, in the twelfth round of their scheduled 15-round bout, winning by a technical knockout when Referee Jack Britton called a halt in the twelfth frame after Battaglia had taken a terrific lacing.

Floored for counts of nine in both the second and eleventh rounds, Battaglia, who once knocked Jeby out with his thunderous right-hand punches in a single round, fought a fearfully courageous battle against overwhelming odds.

A left hook, that caught him on the right cheekbone in the second round after he had been floored by a left to the stomach, burst a blood vessel under the Canadian's right eye.

Unable to see from that side he never had a chance to ward off the left hooks and left jabs of the plodding, plunging Jewish warrior. From the eighth round on the crowd of 7,000 shouted in a chorus for Referee Britton, former welterweight champion, to stop the battle.

Wash-Jeff Matmen Bow to Waynesburg

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 14.—The Wash-Jeff varsity wrestling team missed getting a tie with Waynesburg College's grapplers here last night in the Presidents' opening match of the season by a single second.

Had Ferguson, Wash-Jeff 118-pounder, lasted one more second in his match with Chalfant, of Waynesburg, the meet would have wound up in a deadlock. The Jackets won, 20 to 18.

LONDOS THROWS DUSEK

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—Jim Londos, claimant to the world wrestling championship, defeated Ernie Dusek, of Omaha, in 49 minutes and 48 seconds last night with a body slam followed by a body press.

Keeping Children 'Babies' Hurts Their Futures

Do you want your babies to "always stay babies"?

Does it rend your heart to see them growing up—getting to the place where they'll no longer be helpless and dependent on you?

That's the way Longing Mother feels. Ever see anyone like her? Sure you have.

And what did it do to the youngsters?

Dear Elsie Robinson:

I don't think I've ever missed your column and I like your advice on problems, so I am coming to you for help with an unusual one that I have.

I know you will agree with my relatives and friends—that I am an unusual person. Since I was a tiny little tot I've always loved babies. I always did and always will say that nothing can compare with a baby.

I have been married eight years and have two pretty children. Each time at their births I felt as if I owned the world; and I can't stand to see them grow. I can't stand it when they get past 2 years old, because I want them to always stay babies.

I really enjoy doing those things for them that some mothers dread, taking care of them and feeding them and so forth. I think they're so sweet while they're little and helpless.

WANTS TO ADOPT BABY

Now every couple of years I get such a terrible longing for a new little baby that it upsets my whole life and being; but our income is so very small, and the months before they come seem a lifetime. I am always very ill from the beginning to the end, so the expense is heavy. I have the most lovable and considerate husband, and he loves our children and wants more, too.

Do you think we could love an adopted baby just like our own? I have often thought I would like to adopt a baby, although we would rather have our own. Is it true that they only give babies out for adoption to well-to-do people? It really means an awful lot to me. I could never give a baby "everything it needs," but I could love anybody's baby, I am sure, and it would have good, loving care.

This isn't the first time I've felt like this, and it won't be the last, I know. So please help me out. Could I, or should I, adopt a baby?

LONGING MOTHER.

I don't know any reason why you shouldn't adopt one, my dear, if you can take care of it and give it a fair chance. But can you?

CONSIDER FUTURE

When I ask that, I'm not talking about money. I'm talking about you. Yes, I know you love babies, while they're young and helpless and tickle your egotism by that helplessness and dependence on your strength and care. For that's what your overwhelming "love" is, sister. You're really loving yourself, and the feeling of importance that the baby's helplessness gives you.

But how's that going to work out when that baby grows and begins to sprout a mind and a character of its own? Are you going to give it a break then?

Or are you going to cling to it, and bind it about with yourself, and try to keep it dependent on you?

Is the baby you long for just a live doll, created for your delight? Or is it a human being, and are you willing to proudly help it grow into life, and glory in that growing?

That's the real test of whether you should have a baby or not. For that's the real thing that babies come into this life for, sister—to grow; not just to amuse mamma.

And what different mortals we'd be—how much braver and stronger and more honest—if all mothers would realize that.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Trump End-Play

The art of forcing a chosen opponent into the lead in order to compel a lead into a tenace situation is one not well enough understood by Bridge players generally. Its correct execution frequently means the difference between defeat and success. A forced lead ordinarily comes late in the hand—usually on the twelfth trick, after the adversary has been thrown into the lead on the eleventh trick. Generally, if a hand is played at a suit declaration, such a play is in a plain suit, as ordinarily the adverse trumps would be exhausted long before.

In the hand below, which was played by Mr. S. Stone in a tournament at the Manhattan Club, New York, the end-play in trumps was very successfully brought about.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ◇	2 ♠	3 ♡
4 ♠	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

South's bid of four spades may have been a slight overbid, as North's bid of two spades was not particularly encouraging. West's Double, however, was at least an equally close decision, it being based upon the hope of securing 2 heart tricks and possibly a ruff of a heart trick, as well as the Ace of diamonds and maybe a club trick.

West opened the Ace of hearts, which held the trick, and then laid down the Ace of diamonds and followed with the diamond 5. This the Declarer ruffed with the spade 9, and led the heart 7, which was ruffed with the deuce of trumps in Dummy. The closed hand was re-entered by leading a small club, which was won with the Ace, and another heart led, upon which West discarded a diamond. The 4 of spades was played from Dummy, and the closed hand again entered with the club King. The 9 of hearts was now led, West discarding another diamond, and the Dummy winning the trick with the spade 6. The Declarer now led the 8 of trumps, and won with the Ace in order that he might ruff his remaining heart with the Queen. At this time the hands were:

North:
◇J
♣J 8

West:
♠J 7
♣Q

East:
◇K 2
♣4

South:
♠K 10
♣10

The 8 of clubs was now led from Dummy, which forced West into the lead with the Queen and compelled him to lead from his minor tenace in trumps to the Declarer's major tenace, thus assuring the fulfillment of the contract.

South's play of this hand was unusual, but accurate.

TODAY'S QUESTION

What is the correct Opening bid on the following hand:

♠A Q J ♡A 5 4 3 ◇A K J ♣A K J

Answer: Three notrump. A Forcing two heart bid would not be sound because of the weakness of the suit, and the hand is much too strong to risk a pass of an Opening two notrump bid.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Bridal Attendants

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I was married several weeks ago and had my girl friend for maid of honor and my cousin for my bridesmaid. This friend of mine and I are the same age, and we have been inseparable since we were little girls. While I think a lot of my cousin, too, she is four years younger than I am, and naturally we were never quite so chummy.

And now I have been criticised . . . they say that as my cousin is nearer to me, she should have been my maid of honor. Please tell me which would have been correct?

2—I was married in a hat with a small veil. Should my picture be taken with my hat and veil, or should the hat be removed. G.

1—Don't pay any attention to this unkind and unwarranted criticism. You did quite right in having the girl you wished for each position. If you had given a friend precedence over a sister, there might have been some reason for this comment, but there isn't any reason for it in this case. You should have done as you wanted to do.

2—This is just as you wish. Of course the hat and veil might "date" the photograph, and so perhaps it would be better not to wear them.

Introduction

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—In introducing an attorney, which is the proper thing to say, "Mr. Brown, may I present Mr. Smith," or "Mr. Brown, may I present Attorney Smith?"

2—When addressing a birthday or personal greeting card, should the form be . . "Mr. Smith" or "John Smith, Esq.?"

DAILY READER.

1—The word "attorney" is not used before the name in such an introduction. The best form for this introduction is to use the names only: "Mr. Brown, Mr. Smith."

2—The form John Smith, Esq. is the really correct form. Mr. John Smith is permissible in this country, but really correct people always address such letters with the Esq. instead of the Mr.

'WAR PAINT!'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

The savage colors his face to make himself feared and more terrible. Gentle woman paints hers to ensnare and allure; to make herself more longed-for and more beautiful. Whether it is a working plan or not, that's what lovely woman does it for.

It's all the other woman's fault—the one that started it first. When fresh-but-unarresting-faced Sue comes home from her first big party she flings herself upon her mother. "I was lost—you couldn't see me—I had no color—I've GOT to wear SOME make-up to be seen. All the others do." There was a delightful chap there, too, who seemed to like her a little, and then forgot her. That settled it. The next party Sue went to—she war-painted before she silver-slippered down the front steps. You couldn't blame Sue. The trouble started clear way-back in the Greek, Roman and Egyptian maiden's day. She had her little white-and-red. And made glaring gold her nice brown hair!

But Sue—have you noticed that it's smart to not put so much on as once you did? Do it more subtly ma cherie . . . So subtly that you will not, like the SAVAGE, make yourself FEARED, AND TERRIFYING TO THE LOVER WHOM YOU WOULD NOT HAVE AN ENEMY! —NELL BRINKLEY.

Garden Bouquet Quilt - Block 17 - Forget-me-not

A DIRECTION LEAFLET that will aid in making the Garden Boquet Quilt will be sent free to any reader sending a stamped, addressed envelope to Nancy Page, in care of this paper.

The members of the Nancy Page Quilt Club are bemoaning the fact that there are only four more meetings of the club. Today the group make the first flower in the last row. It is appropriately enough a forget-me-not.

For members who thought the flower was too large to represent a forget-me-not, Nancy said, "All right, call it an anemone if you want to. Or make it a blue flax. I don't care. You see all those flowers are about the same shape. It's just a matter of personal preference."

The forget-me-not may be made in pale blue or in pale blue and pale pink. One of the flowers may be blue and two of them pink. In any case, though, Nancy advised that the deeper part of the flower, shown by the shaded portion, be of the same color as the upper part. It might be a darker shade. But she didn't advise blue and pink combined in one flower.

The materials chosen are color fast and of a softness which will allow easy stitching. Gingham is good.

The tiny circle in the center of the wide open flower may be embroidered in fast color embroidery cotton. The larger circle may be worked in outline stitch, or it may be a small appliqued circle of a deeper shade of cloth. The outline stitch is the easier to use.

After the pattern, with its accompanying directions, was cut from the paper, a light tracing was made on the white triangle which is seamed to the lower triangle block. This lower triangle consists of the pieced urn.

After the tracing on the cloth has been made a second tracing is made on lightweight cardboard. This is cut out and used as patterns for cutting the materials, which will soon appear as flower and leaves.

The patterns are laid on material and the pieces cut with one-quarter inch allowance on all sides. The raw edges are turned under this quarter inch and basted and pressed.

Then the pieces are laid in place on the traced outline and appliqued in place. A slanting, invisible hemming stitch is used.

The stem, which is best made of bias tape, is continued up under the open flower, as indicated by the dotted lines. The dotted lines in the flowers show where the pieces overlap. It is wise to allow sufficient material for under laying, otherwise the pattern pulls out of shape.

The flowers may be done in outline stitch, although this is not advised. They, as well as the leaves and stem, may be colored with crayon, which is set into material by pressing with a hot iron.

The pieces may be appliqued by using a buttonhole stitch. When this is done it is not necessary to allow the quarter inch for turning under edges, since the buttonhole covers the raw edges.

The birds are appliqued in place and the seventeenth block of the garden bouquet quilt is finished.

BACK BLOCKS SUPPLIED

In the event you have missed any of the Garden Bouquet Quilt blocks previously published in this paper, please send 10 cents for each block missing. Also inclose stamped, addressed envelope. Address Nancy Page, care of this paper.

Heart of a Wife

Searchers Meet in a Midnight Conference

Had anything happened to Mary and Noel? That was the question that beat insistently upon my brain as I waited, with one hand upon the telephone receiver for a message to come from them. If harm had come to my husband's winsome young niece because I had permitted her to accompany Noel in trailing Samuel Brixton, how could I ever forgive myself?

The ringing of the telephone interrupted my self-flagellation, and I snatched the receiver from the hook with fingers that I could not keep steady.

"Mary?" I quavered.

"No, dearest, this is Father," a beloved voice answered. "But Mary and Noel are here, perfectly all right. Will it be possible for you, Lillian and Harry to come over as soon as Mary and Noel get back to the hotel?"

'As far as I know now, yes," I returned, keeping my voice to a murmur.

"Has our neighbor come upstairs?"

"Yes, 10 minutes ago, and has locked the door. I think they are asleep. Wait, there's a knock."

RONALD UPSET

I went to the door and opened it upon Ronald, wild-eyed, patently distraught, who slipped in past me and motioned to me to close the door.

"He went away for an hour and came back only a few minutes ago," he whispered hoarsely. "What will you think of me for not following him? But it was simply impossible to get away from mother. Thank heaven! They're both asleep now, I think. At any rate he told me I could go into my own room for the night, and I beat it down here the first second I could."

"You have done exactly the right thing, Ronald," I answered him. "Nobody expected you to leave your mother, and it would have excited your stepfather's suspicions if you had left her. Don't worry! I think he was most efficiently shadowed by Noel and Mary. Go back to your room, so that your stepfather will find you there if he wishes you for anything.

"I do not know what has happened yet myself, only that Mary and Noel are coming back here, and that then the Underwoods and I are going over to the school. But remember, you do not know that. Get some sleep if you can, dear boy! I'll let you know everything as soon as I can."

MARY RETURNS

"Sleep!" Ronald's exclamation was filled with horrified incredulity. "I don't think I ever shall sleep again—listen! I'm going to leave my door ajar a crack, and when I hear you people come in after you have come back from the school, may I come in and find out what you have discovered?"

"Yes, yes," I told him, and he left the room in the same stealthy fashion as he had entered it, while I went back to the telephone.

"It was Ronald, wondering about everything," I told my father, "but he has gone back now, and I think the coast is clear. I'll tell the Underwoods, and we'll be all ready to start the minute Noel and Mary get back."

"That's my own girl," my father said approvingly. "Don't risk discovery. If you're late, we'll understand."

But we were not late. No sound came from the Brixton suite. There was not even a glimmer of light through the keyhole. When Mary came softly up the stairs five minutes later, Lillian and I were ready to start.

"I haven't time to tell you anything," Mary whispered breathlessly, "for they want you over there as soon as possible. But we told them everything. Now, I'll keep watch here, and if they move I'll telephone. I'll also be the best little fibber in seven counties, if Mrs. Brixton should want either you or Aunt Lillian."

"I know we can depend on you, dear," I told her, and then Lillian and I tiptoed down the stairs and out to the waiting motor.

Five minutes later we were all in the Barnes' private sitting room.

"Brixton drove to another town and called Philadelphia over a long distance telephone," my father said. "We're checking up now on the number, but we're pretty sure he called Owen."

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Measles Cases Increase in Even-Numbered Years

Dr. Copeland

Within recent years New York City has shown an increased number of cases of measles in the even-numbered years. These are now called "measles years" During the past year there has been a steady increase in the number of cases and the outlook for 1933 is discouraging. Parents, physicians and health officers everywhere should guard against an increased prevalence of the disease this winter.

I am sorry to say that measles is still regarded by many parents as of little consequence. Few realize that its death rate is very high. A study of statistics shows that measles causes more deaths in a large city than does diphtheria. Too often this disease is neglected. The physician may not be called until the child has developed a complication, such as bronchial pneumonia.

Measles is highly contagious and quickly spreads from one child to another Unfortunately, the disease, especially in its mild form, may be mistaken for a simple cold.

The characteristic rash of measles appears at about the fifth day. Children who have been exposed to the afflicted child, even before the appearance of the rash, are liable to contract the disease.

The first measure to be taken in the prevention of measles is the immediate isolation of children showing signs of a simple cold. Let me warn the busy mother to suspect measles in a child with signs of a cold and pain in the eyes. Do not wait for the rash to appear. Place the child in bed. Keep him well covered and give simple but nourishing foods.

If the eyes become inflamed and the child complains that light causes pain, particularly if fever and restlessness are observed, do not delay calling your physician. Care and nursing are essential to the prevention of the dangerous complications of measles.

In severe cases benefit has been reported from the injection of small quantities of whole blood. The blood is taken from one of the parents and is injected into the buttocks of the sufferer. This does not prevent measles but it aids in the development of a modified and milder type of the disease.

Children who have recovered from measles require careful attention. Measles, like other infectious diseases, lowers the resistance of the body. The convalescent child should be assured of sufficient rest, fresh air and sunlight, proper number of hours of sleep and nourishing food. Protect him against cold and dampness. Carelessness in the after care of the sick child may lead to pneumonia, pleurisy and other serious infections.

Bear in mind that the greatest danger attached to measles is its neglect. There is a popular idea that measles is a necessary evil of childhood. I feel confident that if this impression could be corrected, fewer children would be exposed to measles and the disease would disappear as a menace to our children.

MARY FAITH

Story of a Girl With Husband Who Wouldn't Grow Up

By BEATRICE BURTON

Mary Faith Realizes Truth Of Warning About Kim's Undependability

Synopsis

Mary Faith, secretary to Mark Nesbit, wealthy businessman, gives up her position to marry Kimberley Farrell shiftless young lawyer. She realizes he has an eye for every girl, but hopes that married life will sober him and make him successful in his profession. Instead, Kim is annoyed at Mary Faith's "Puritanism," and his friends, Claire and Jack Maldon, find her a dull companion. Learning that she is to become a mother, Mary Faith, for the first time, visits Kim's office. Kim is furious when Mary Faith finds him flirting with his blonde secretary. That night he informs his mother and Mary Faith that he is leaving. Heartbroken, Mary Faith decides not to tell him of her approaching motherhood. She gets a temporary job as a stenographer Kim returns after a son is born. Months of happiness follow. Kim is sick when he returns home very late one night. Mary Faith sees a tavern advertisement when it falls from his pocket.

Now Go On

CHAPTER XXXI.

In the morning he was so sick that after she had taken one look at him she telephoned Dr. Thatcher.

"Pleurisy," he said gravely when he arrived. "Bad case of it, too. I thought I told you to keep this fellow in the house for a few days, Mrs. Farrell."

Mary Faith wrung her hands. "He would go out yesterday. He started out for the office after lunch when the sun was shining—no one would have dreamed that it was going to rain."

"He was out half the night," Aunt Ella's voice came from the doorway of the room. "I heard him come in, and it was long after 12 o'clock. I suppose he'd been out eating and drinking with some of his cronies."

"I'll bet it was some woman he was with," she said sharply to Mary Faith when the doctor had left. "He's his beautiful father all over again!—This is just the sort of thing Amelia was up against all the years she lived with that beautiful duck! —'Like father, like son,' as they say—"

Through the open door of the little room across the hall Mary Faith could see the baby, perched up in his bed like a little bird, watching her with his bright blue eyes. He laughed when he saw her look at him and waved his small hands.

She waved back at him. "If I never teach him anything else," she promised herself solemnly, "I'll teach him to be honest and to be square."

CALLS FOR WIFE

For 10 days Kim lay in bed. And day after day Mary Faith sat by the window of his room, sewing or reading, hovering over him with medicine or the thermometer. One night when his fever was very high he had a touch of delirium and called for her even when she was sitting on the bed beside him.

"No—no—I want to talk to Mary Faith," he said thickly, beating back the hands with which she tried to quiet him. "I must talk to Mary Faith—"

"So after all I'm the person he thinks of and wants 'way down deep in his mind," she told herself, "no matter how many times he goes to the Golden Pheasant or up to Claire's flat—" And the thought comforted her and sustained her through the anxiety of the next few days.

Then Mrs. Farrell caught a little cold. She insisted that it was a bad attack of hay fever and announced, after seeing Dr. Thatcher, that she needed a change of air.

"I thought first of going down to Garrettsville for a few weeks," Mary Faith heard her tell Kim. "But I decided that the dust in the country roads and the hay fields would be bad for me, so I'm going to visit Cousin Lucy Starke."

NEVER SAW WOMAN

Lucy Starke was Mrs. Farrell's second cousin, an elderly spinster who taught school in Hampden Ledges, a little town among the hills in the southern part of the state. Mary Faith had never seen her, but she had sent a hand-made dress and a friendly little note when the baby came. After reading the note, Mary Faith felt that she knew Lucy. Such neat, cramped handwriting could belong only to a person whose life was calm and well-ordered. She knew that Cousin Lucy lived alone, and she pictured her as occupying a small house on a side street. She wondered, as she helped Mrs. Farrell pack, just what Cousin Lucy's state of mind would be when her guest began to throw burnt matches on the floor of the neat little kitchen, when she began to leave empty coffee cups around the house, when she asked foolish questions and made endless small talk.

Mary Faith had a shamed feeling of relief when she saw that Mrs. Farrell intended to stay at Hampden Ledges for a long time. Four suitcases, a big leather hatbox and a little brown valise were packed.

"I'd have taken my trunk, instead of all these bags," she said to Mary Faith the night before her departure, "but I thought that it would be almost impossible to get it into the back of the doctor's car. These can be arranged without any trouble."

MARY FAITH SURPRISED

Having said that, she stood back to watch the effect of her words on Mary Faith.

"The doctor's car?" Mary Faith repeated, a puzzled look coming into her wide, serene eyes. "You mean Dr. Thatcher's car?"

"Yes. I forgot to tell you that he's going to drive me down to Hampden Ledges. It's only eight miles, and it's a beautiful drive, through the hills . . . Don't stare so, Mary Faith. I know that I'm just an old grandmother to you, but it seems that I'm still an attractive woman to men of my own age!"

That night Mrs. Farrell went to bed with an extra layer of cold cream on her face and kid curlers in her gray-blonde hair; and the next morning—a hot, rainy Sunday—she drove away with the doctor, looking gay and almost young, her eyes shining happily from under the brim of her new hat.

"It'd be funny if the two of them got married, wouldn't it?" Kim mused, as the doctor's car purred rhythmically out of sight. "They've known each other for years and—well, stranger things have happened, you know."

The mere thought that stranger things had happened lifted Mary Faith's spirits wonderfully. She had a certain affection for Kim's mother, but there was no doubt that she was a very irritating person to have around. She insisted upon handling the housekeeping money, and she had no idea of economy. She bought veal steak at sixty cents a pound when veal chops at forty-two would have done just as well. She ordered alligator pears when they were out of season and she bought pink perfumed soap that cost a quarter a bar, when she knew that both Mary Faith and Kim preferred scentless white soap for less than half the money. And she was forever bringing home some nonsensical—and unnecessary—toy to the baby.

"But she loves Kim and she's loyal to him," Mary Faith would remind herself.

RESTLESS AGAIN

For the next few weeks Kim came home early every afternoon. Mary Faith would make a cup of tea for him, and then he would lie on the old sofa and read or sleep until dinner was ready. He seemed to enjoy the peace and quiet of the flat, the uneventful hours that he spent listening to the radio or sitting on the front steps with Mary Faith. He would tell her that she was the loveliest thing and much, much too good for him. Mary Faith was very grateful for all her happiness. She told herself that it had always been written in the stars that her life with Kim should turn out to be just like this.

And then, during the last two or three days of that extraordinarily hot dry month of July, she noticed, with growing concern, a certain restlessness in Kim.

One evening Kim did not come home for his dinner until half past seven. He offered no excuses for his tardiness and he hardly touched the fried chicken and hot biscuit that Mary Faith had had already to serve at six o'clock.

He soon went to bed, and Mary Faith found herself thinking of something Mrs. Farrell had said about him long ago. Her bitter words seemed to fill the hot little kitchen.

"This is the sort of thing you'll have to learn to expect if you marry Kimberly," Mrs. Farrell had said. "Meals spoiled because he's not here to eat them on time! Whole dinners put away untouched sometimes because he doesn't show up at all!"

HAD BEEN DRINKING

Kim was asleep when Mary Faith turned out the kitchen light and went into the bedroom. The light above the bed gleamed on his blond hair, and he looked as innocent as a child when Mary Faith bent to kiss him.

He had been drinking. She knew it as she leaned close to him and felt his warm breath on her face, and she drew back without touching him. She went out to the back porch to think. If Kim had begun to drink again, it must mean—well, what did it mean? Did it mean that he was bored once more with the quiet decent life he had been leading? Or did it mean nothing except that he had met some friends and had taken a drink with them?

Kim had been drinking—she knew that.

"That's probably all there was to it," she comforted herself, "and after all he didn't stay out all evening."

Presently she got up, locked the doors of the flat, and crept quietly into the big walnut bed beside Kim. Through all the gray veils of sleep he must have known that she was there, for he murmured drowsily and stretched out his arm toward her. And at his touch, sheer love for him—for his weakness and his faults as well as his virtues—welled up in Mary Faith's heart.

She would rather be here, she told herself, in this hot little room than in the most magnificent house in the world . . . And then she found herself thinking of the most magnificent house she had ever been in —Mark Nesbit's house in Blue Valley. It would be lovely at this time of the year, with the trees rustling around it and the green gardens and orchards and fields stretching out like magic patchwork on every side. She had never regretted that house any more than she had regretted Mark Nesbit. She did not regret it now.

Kim stirred in his sleep and awoke. "It's stifling in this room," he murmured. "I sure did envy Jack Maldon tonight, living at the Athletic Club, with an electric fan in his room and a waiter bringing him cracked ice every third drink."

"What's Jack doing at the Athletic Club, Kim?"

"Oh, he's been there for a week. Didn't you know it? Claire went to Detroit to visit some friends, and he's living at the club until she comes home, so he says. I gather that they've had some kind of a row. I wouldn't be surprised if she didn't come home at all."

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Today marked the second Saturday when the members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club who belong to the Cameraphone, Belmar, Schenley, Rowland, Sheridan Square Manor, Plaza, Arsenal and Etna-Harris chapters, enjoyed the big vaudeville shows which are now presented at these theaters each Saturday for their amusement.

The three units which made their first appearance last Saturday will have played all the above theaters by next Saturday and already Josh Dreano has in rehearsal three new units to replace The Rythm Sisters, Billinger and Miller, Anna Mae Johnson, acrobat, and Frankie Porter, Pittsburgh's boy soprano and master of ceremonies, who appeared at the Cameraphone, Belmar and Schenley.

TWO SHOWS

Incidentally, Manager Harry Thomas of the Schenley had two complete stage shows for the youngsters today. Beside the above artists the pupils of Vera Leibau's School of Dancing performed. The members of this school have been great favorites with the youngsters of the Schenley chapter for a long time.

Another unit will take the place of the Evans Sisters, harmony singers and dancers; Jane Neff, singer of ballads, and Fred Kelly, dancer extraordinary, who also acts as master of ceremonies. This unit appeared at Plaza, Arsenal and Etna-Harris today.

The third unit, Prof. Maier's "Punch and Judy" show, which is one of the oldest forms of entertainment in the world, appeared at the Rowland, Manor and Sheridan Square. This unit will have completed the circuit also next Saturday and will be replaced by another.

MANY ENROLLED

Manager Bronson again was deluged with youngsters enrolling in the club this morning. The membership drive which was launched last Saturday still has two weeks to run. To the boy and girl who enroll the most new members in the Cameraphone Chapter will go a valuable prize. This drive closes on January 28.

The members of the Sheridan Square Chapter received an important announcement at today's meeting. The full text of this announcement will be found in the Komic Club news of tomorrow's Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

If you are not a member of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club send your name and address, name of your parents, date and year of your birth, to the secretary, Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a membership card and button will be mailed to you.

Isn't It So?

Unless gossip is properly aired it is short lived.

Woman is life's greatest pleasure—or greatest worry.

Some men worry over the size of their bills as much as some women worry over the size of their hips.

The best way to economize is to go ahead and do it.

A man usually looks foolish when he leaps before he looks.

Bugs Baer

Don't Like Scientific Breakfasts

The famous words of famous men oft remind us that we can be just as silly.

We have read thousands of mildewed paragraphs of the world's best minds. And they don't tell us any more than we could learn going by a Chinese proclamation on a fast motorcycle.

It may be the fault of the press. When a news reporter rushes up to a distinguished foreigner and hollers, "What do you think of the new pink grapefruit?" the man is naturally stymied like a boat in a fog.

Nobody knows what they think of the new pink grapefruit. You're too busy protecting yourself to think.

Yep, they're making 'em pink. They used to be colorless. But now they want to feed you and dye your hair at the same time.

Why, nobody knows. We ran smack up against our first one yesterday morning. It was redder than our bank statement. We managed to spoon it up. We come from a sturdy old line of indomitable pioneers who never washed their lettuce.

It tasted about the same as the old style California football. The results were also normal. There's only one way to eat 'em. And that's on the train going past a small town. Stick your head out of the window and grab 'em like a mail bag.

We wish they would stop fiddling with our breakfasts. Since they invented electric griddles we haven't had a good hunk of burned toast in years. They have even invented a flapjack machine that mixes them, cooks 'em, turns 'em over, endorses them, dates 'em, places three on a plate and never makes a mistake.

That's too perfect. In the old days we had a chance of getting four if they were good. One was enough.

They haven't succeeded in machine-ageing the egg much. That still arrives the same way, is boiled the same way and has the scientists going nuts in attempts to cross it with a cocoanut or a self-peeling artichoke.

That's one victory for nature. And we could call that a start if it wasn't almost the finish.

CLIP THIS OUT AND HAND IT TO YOUR FATHER-IN-LAW TO BE

We cannot—will not—let this opportunity pass for reproducing the powerful cartoon, "His First Drink," which appeared 20 years ago as a broadside for temperance. Beneath the cartoon was printed this little story.

His lack of moral courage to refuse, when tendered a drink with such cordial dignity by his "father-in-law to be," dealt the first great pang of anguish to the soul of his fiancee, for she knew too well of her mother's years of silent suffering and the heartaches of a broken confidence.

Who first instituted the dunk;
Since now, coast to coast,

Shove him gloatingly off
And to wait till I saw him submerge.

Pan-American Reciprocity Will Assure Greater Market for Our Products

GENERALIZATIONS ARE easy to make,—but they do not carry one far.

Success in any field,—even progress—requires a grasp of the specific aspects of the task in hand, sound approach, a knowledge of the intermediate steps, orderly advance, and a patient mastery of details and particulars.

Pan-Americanism is a subject that lends itself readily to generalization which we can all accept.

The difficulties begin to loom when one sets out to particularize as to just HOW, at WHAT POINTS in the complicated and in many respects artificial trade structure, and BY WHAT MEANS, this great and desirable aim can be promoted.

* * *

DOMESTIC industries are sensitive and watchful. This is true not only of our own, but of those in every Central and South American country.

What tends to promote prosperity for all and for trade in general is sure to be jealously resisted in some localities, or some limited areas of commerce where the greater good is less regarded than the minor dislocation or the particular inconvenience.

This is human and must be accepted as one of the unavoidable incidents of the struggle for progress.

However, it cannot be ignored. It must be reckoned with. And it is the task of statesmanship, both economic and political, in the endeavor to increase the outlet for American labor and products to offset, by RECIPROCAL CONCESSIONS whose value can be demonstrated and felt, whatever concessions we may be called upon to make.

This pre-supposes not only a BROAD TREATMENT of the problem, but MINUTE and INTELLIGENT STUDY of it.

We must not expect to achieve good results, or any results, by formulas that are too comprehensive or by proposals that have the vice and weakness of mere generalization.

* * *

THE commercial edifice of wider mutual trade that we are discussing must be reared like any other well-built structure,—one stone at a time.

We have all observed how long it takes a skilled mason to lay a single stone in its proper place,—how the huge block hangs poised over its position, while every angle of the supporting stone is examined with the aid of instruments of precision,—the mortar spread with the most careful regard to amount and thickness, the stone finally lowered into place with the utmost slowness and care and allowed to rest, at the conclusion of an operation marvelous for its delicacy when the weight and bulk of the material is considered.

So the building rises—and so a policy, as imposing and sensitive as mutual trade reciprocity, is builded.

* * *

THE importance to the American people of the Latin American trade with the United States may be seen from the fact that in the relatively normal year of 1926, twenty-five per cent of our total imports came from the Central and South American countries, and twenty per cent of our exports were absorbed by them. This was three years before the ill-fated boom had given to all trade statistics a misleading distortion.

Europe, on the other hand, which in 1900 took three-quarters of our exports, took less than half in the year 1926, showing a decline of 33⅓ per cent in the course of twenty-five years.

Our imports from Europe in the same period of years declined from fifty-one per cent to twenty-nine per cent of our total importations.

The unmistakable shift of our trade from Europe to Latin America is conclusively shown by these figures.

The question is,—ARE WE GOING TO READ THE WRITING ON THE WALL OR IGNORE IT?

* * *

ARE we observant enough to see that the commercial future of the United States is primarily in the Western Hemisphere, and that the greatest impetus we can give to a revival of prosperity is by sedulously cultivating, in a SPIRIT OF GIVE AND TAKE, the great markets which the unmistakable trends of world development indicate are lying at our very door?

One thing is certain.

The day is past when Pan-Americanism can be helped by any more debates about the "codification of international law" or by any effort, such as that of Mr. Hughes at the Pan-American Conference a few years ago in Havana, to reach a statement of "our policies with reference to each other, conceived in terms of juristic rights and obligations."

OUR MUTUAL POLICIES MUST BE STATED in terms of ENLIGHTENED ACTION.

The UNITY OF THE NATIONS OF THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE must be sought in terms of a JUST CONSIDERATION of EACH OTHER'S INTERESTS.

* * *

DESIRABLE as Pan-American solidarity is from every standpoint,—moral, political and material—it will only come to pass as each nation in its own sphere shows the sincerity of its desire and its practical capacity to order its affairs and direct its policy with reference to the broad goal of the common well-being.

From the strength and prosperity of all, each will derive greater and more lasting benefit than can possibly result from the pursuit of aims that are wholly self-centered and exclusive.

Patriotic Pittsburgh

The City Is Showing Enthusiasm for the "Buy American" Movement—Comment on Local News.

Pittsburgh, ever patriotic, is showing gratifying enthusiasm for the "Buy American" movement. The call for the purchase of home products in preference to imported articles has spread from here to all sections. Pittsburghers are acting as missionaries in the diffusion of the doctrine that the economic welfare of the country demands that American money shall be kept in America.

Dr. Alexander Silverman, head of the chemistry department at the University of Pittsburgh, preached the patronizing of home industry in an address at Cincinnati on the subject of glass. He said the quality of our glass equals that of European manufacture and in a number of instances excels, and that there is every reason why the American glass industry, centering in Pittsburgh, should be fostered and patronized.

The University of Pittsburgh is helping to promote Pan-American co-operation, another of the important planks in the platform of the Hearst newspapers. Jose Vanzuela, Mexican consul in Pittsburgh, is to speak at the university next Friday on "Mexico's Solution of a Perplexing Social Problem." Mutual helpfulness is the foundation on which the Pan-American movement rests.

The Allegheny County League of Women Voters has adopted a resolution condemning State Senator George L. Reed, of Dauphin County, for his insulting remarks about Mrs. Gifford Pinchot in a speech on the floor of the Senate. There is not a decent Pennsylvanian who does not share the women's indignation over the slur on the Governor's wife.

One of the most impressive things said at the rally for election law reform was Senator W. D. Mansfield's statement that hard fighting will be necessary not only to strengthen the election laws at this session of the Legislature, but also to save the primary election system of making party nominations from being abolished. Public sentiment should express itself vigorously in opposition to the abolition of the primary.

The County Commissioners, by severely slashing the budget estimates, have encouraged the hope that the county's 1933 financial program will be one that will meet with the approval of the hard-pressed taxpayers. They would win still greater confidence if while cutting other officials' salaries they would also take a generous reduction in their own pay.

The County Commissioners have adopted a resolution which provides that no county employe who is a member of the State Legislature shall receive his county salary while serving at Harrisburg. But Commissioner W. D. Mansfield and Assistant County Solicitor James H. McClure are to be exempted from the pay cut. Their exemption leaves a bad impression. Sauce for the goose should be sauce for the gander.

Opinions differ as to whether the Board of Public Education or the Allegheny County Emergency Association should be in charge of the feeding of under-nourished school children. The need is urgent, and the philanthropy must continue. The School Board has done good work, and we have seen no compelling reason why the task should be entrusted to other hands.

Pittsburgh at night, with its tall buildings illuminated and its electric signs flashing, is a spectacle worth seeing. A glimpse of it will be offered in the Gravure Section of tomorrow's issue of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. An eight-column photograph will show the Gulf Building, highest in the city, illuminated from top to bottom, an impressive sight.

"Man's Insect Enemies" is the subject of the leading article in the American Weekly to be distributed tomorrow as a supplement to the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. It tells how the destruction of bird life has begun to upset Nature's balance between the bugs and birds, and of the fight that Science must now take up to save mankind from disaster.

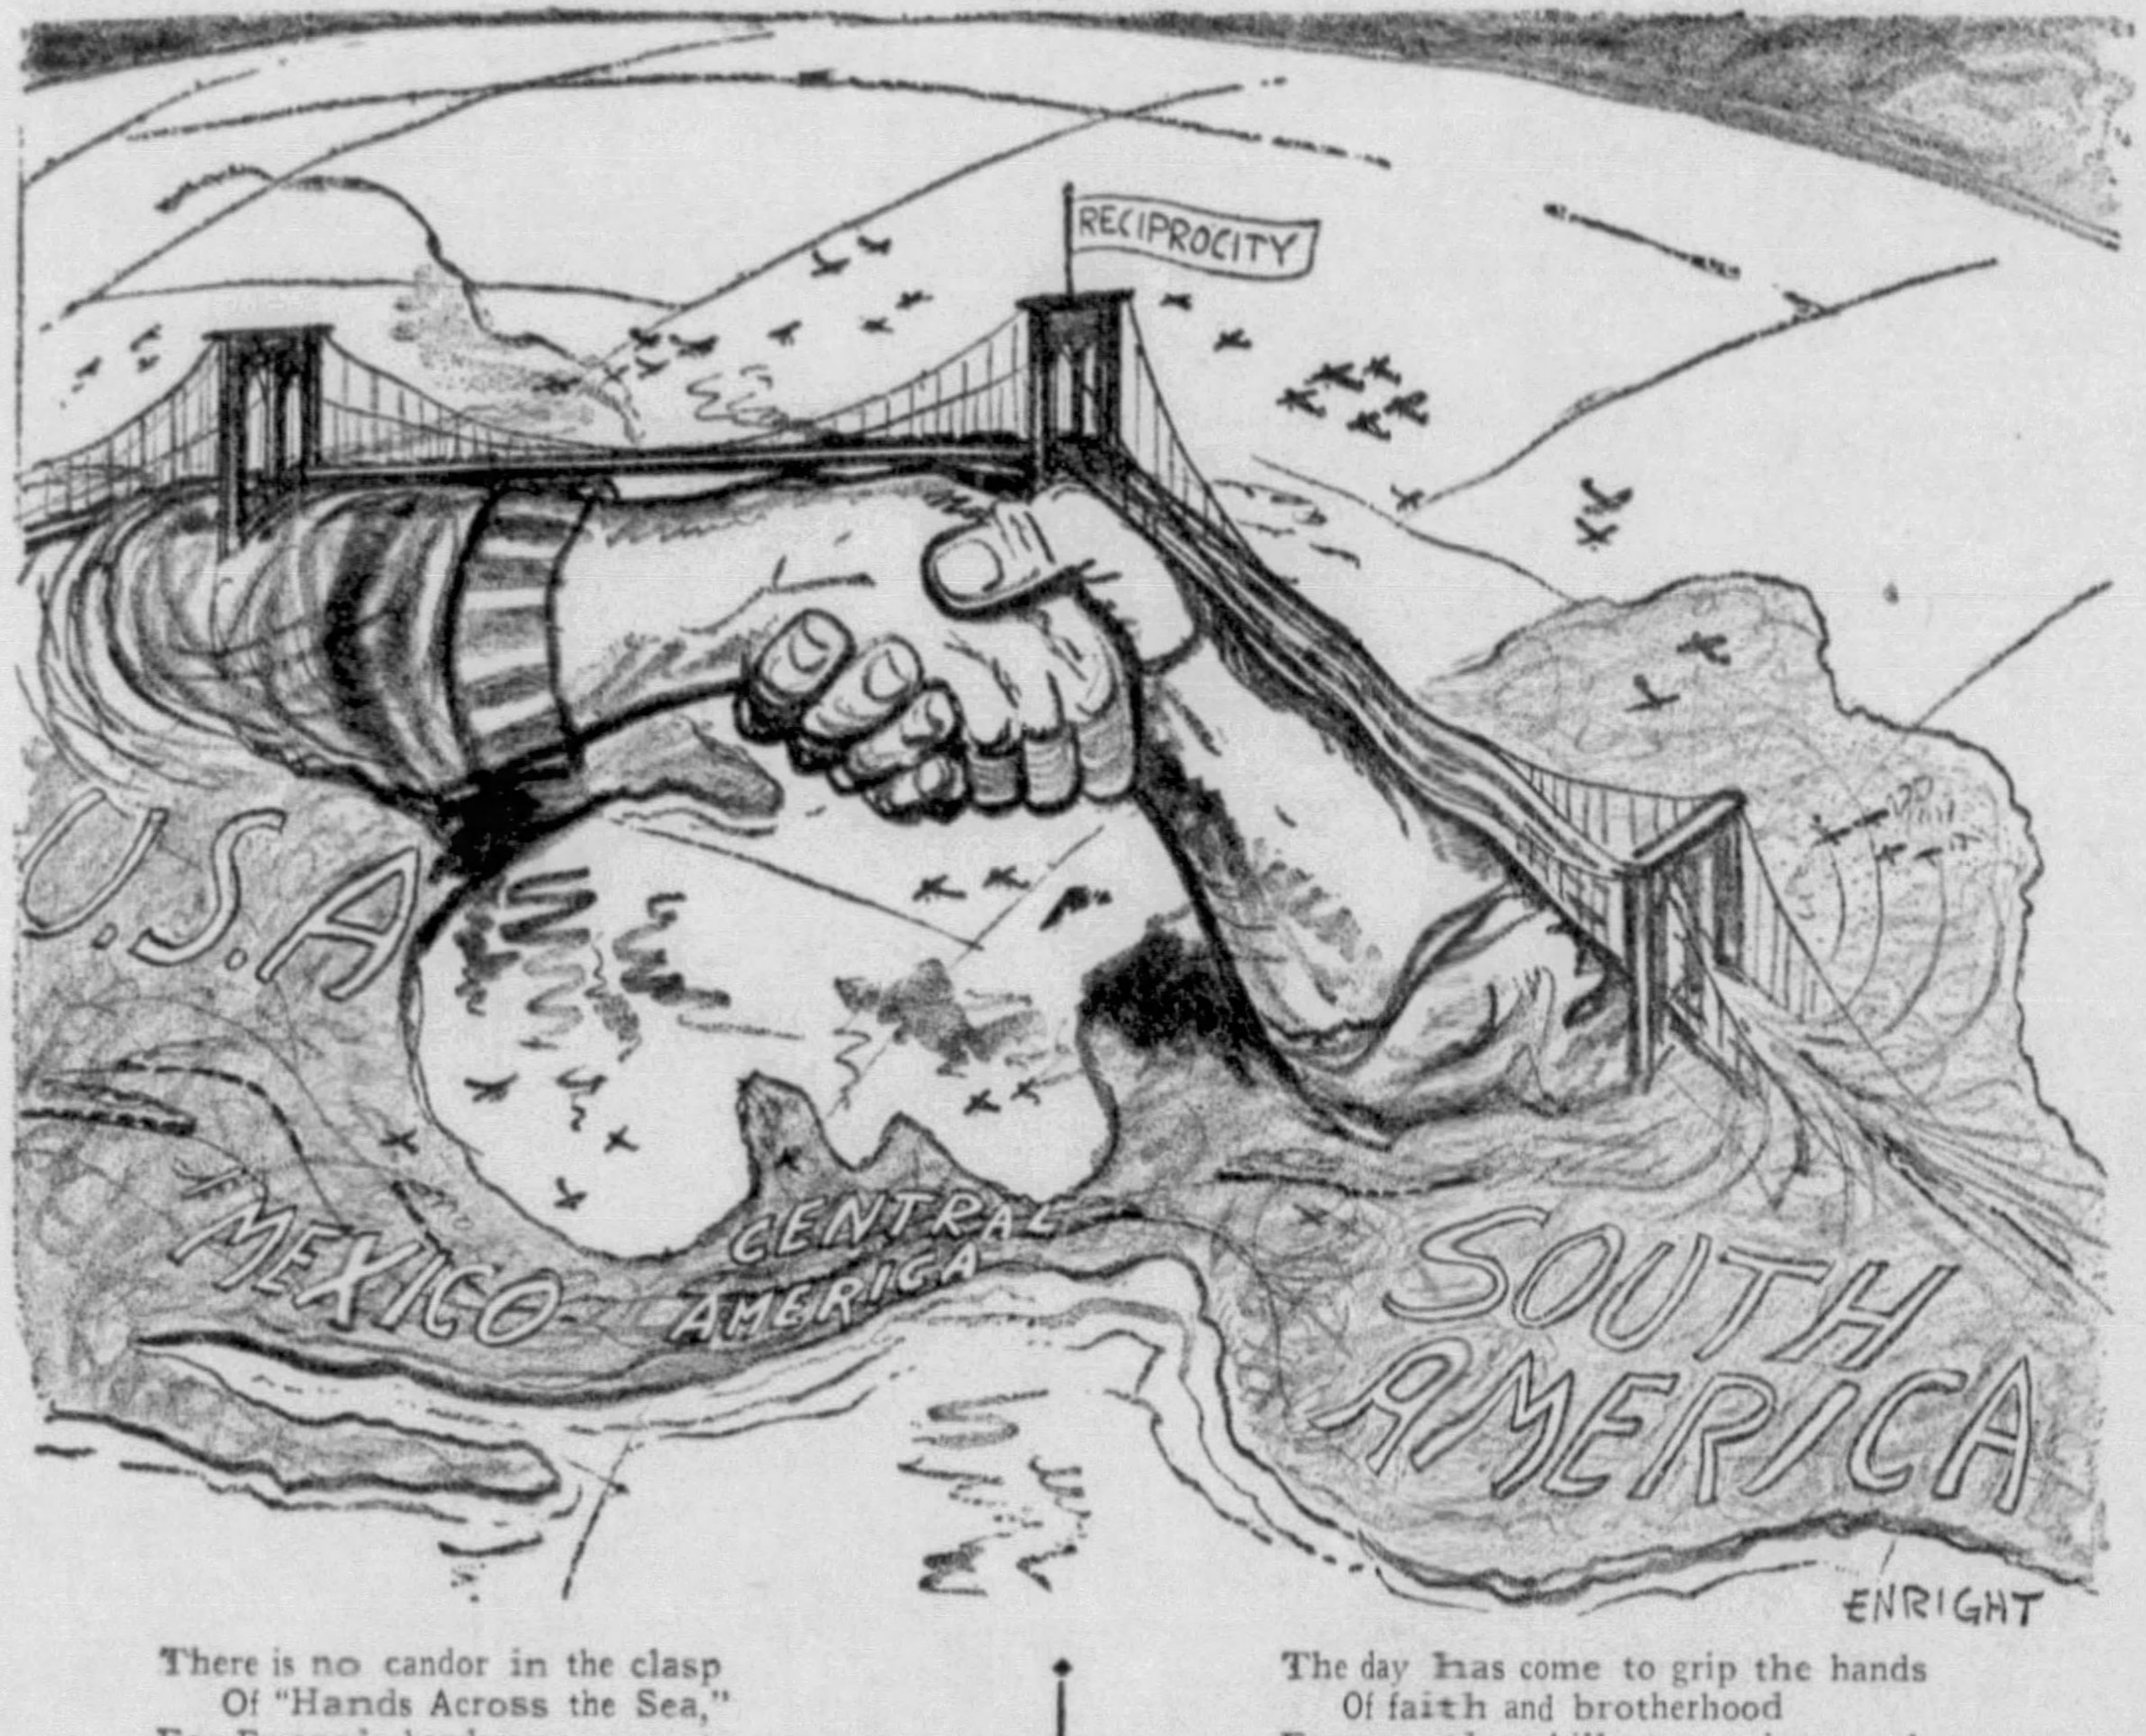
Bridging the Gulf

(Copyright, 1933.)



There is no candor in the clasp
Of "Hands Across the Sea,"
For Europe's hands are prone to grasp
At Uncle's treasury.
That slogan is a total loss,
Denatured long ago,
And it is time for hands across
The Gulf of Mexico.

The day has come to grip the hands
Of faith and brotherhood
From northern hills to tropic strands,
All for the common good;
To shun the endless strife and woe
Of Old World animosity
And prosper in the friendly glow
Of New World reciprocity.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

You say you can't forget?

Well, what of it? Haven't you gumption enough to stand your own memories? Haven't you sense enough to turn all your memories—good or bad, bitter or glad—to advantage? Sense enough to see that memories are the stuff life grows in?

You say you can't forget. Go out to the soil. Take some of it in your hand. Study that soil. The soil doesn't forget, either. It has never forgotten anything. Everything that has ever happened to man since the beginning of time is in it.

Tears are in the soil. Sweat is in it. Blood and dead bones, and carrion are in it. Flowers are in it, too; and sunshine, and fruit, and sweet gums, and the fragrant dust of a million springtimes. ALL of it there, in the dust—AND THE LIFE OF TODAY GROWS IN THAT DUST OF THE PAST.

NEXT JUNE'S ROSES WILL ROOT IN LAST JUNE'S MUCK.

Think about that. Let yourself be touched by the drama and the poetry of that fact; by the wonder and mystery and terrible power of soil. You are touched, aren't you? Then why aren't you touched by the drama and poetry of your own life; by the wonder and mystery and power of your own soul?

SOILS AND SOULS ARE ALL OF A PIECE.

They are accumulations — accumulations of experience. And that which IS and IS TO BE springs from that which WAS.

You say you can't forget. Don't try to forget! Try to remember. Face your memories and try to understand them. Some of them hurt, terribly, while you were accumulating them. You would, if you could, have put that experience from you. You were bitter, broken, ashamed. But all that is over now. They have become memories. AND NOW EACH ONE OF THEM, NO MATTER HOW HATEFUL IT WAS IN THE PAST, IS IMPORTANT; IS VALUABLE; IS SOIL FOR GREATER GROWTH.

Face your memories. Don't omit any of them. Use them all.

You had a great tragedy? Death took the one you loved best; broke your heart? THEN BE GLAD THAT YOU COULD LOVE GREATLY ENOUGH TO HAVE A BROKEN HEART. Be proud because your life once held such glory. And in your ploughed soul, plant richer harvest of love.

You made a great mistake? What if you did? It would have been infinitely more tragic if you had never made mistakes; if you had never risked life enough to make a mistake. Be glad you dared to risk. Stop sniveling and sneaking. Be grateful for the wisdom you gathered from that shame and disaster. Use that wisdom. Live the more abundantly because of your dearly bought wisdom and strength.

You say you can't forget? Don't try to forget. Treasure your memories. Treasure the deep, black soil that you built with your tears and terrors, your miseries and mistakes. Weep new tears. Make new mistakes. Risk new tragedies. DEEPEN THAT SOIL OF MEMORY—AND GROW IN IT!

Text For Today

He that believeth on him is not condemned: but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God.—John, iii:18.

(Today's text is suggested by the Rev. Albert G. Merkens, pastor, First Trinity Lutheran Church, East End.)

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—This letter, bearing a Siamese stamp, the postoffice name of which is blurred pale, arrived by morning mail. With minor deletions to fit space, it's printed as received:

"Wasn't it Nietzsche who said that every man's consuming passion was wanderlust, but only the brave succumbed? From skyscraper windows, for 20 years, I felt the pull of the far away and what for most of us is the unattainable.

"Then, like a clock's tick, I became one of the drifters of the world. So sudden, that now, two years later, I am amazed at what happened. I was on a steamer bound for Europe to consummate a deal in which my firm was interested. I was not particularly unhappy.

"The market drop had reduced a sizeable fortune to $20,000, which I had converted into cash and deposited with a trust company. But I had my job, with only a small cut in salary. Yet, I found myself in a harrassed state of mind. My losses convinced me of the futility of hard work.

"I now know that the editor with whom you, Charlie Norris and I once argued at dinner was right. That was about 12 years ago at the Brevoort. You may remember his thesis: Thrift is folly. Eventually, more wide-awake minds take it from you. He was correct, 100 per cent.

* * *

"Anyway, walking deck this particularly calm moonlight night, I decided that I was fed up with glass-topped desks and revolving chairs; I am a bachelor, my parents are dead, and there are no sentimental ties. The high-pressure grind had been no fun. At 47, I did not have so many active years ahead. If I wanted adventure, I must seize life by the throat. It was all decided as fast as a star's twinkle.

* * *

"Arriving in London, in throes of this raffish streak, I turned over my mission to a capable solicitor, cabled my firm that I would not return, then went to an obscure hotel in Liverpool and remained a few weeks, 'laying low.' Afterward, I returned to London, transferred my $20,000 and 'shot the works' in traveler's checks.

* * *

"Two years passed, and I still have $8,000. But I have seen much of the world and fascinating places which I never expected to see. I stop at cheap hotels, sometimes taking menial jobs for variety, drink more than I should and otherwise abuse a fairly sound body. I have mingled with men and women, too, that were infra dig in other times, but I feel no particular degradation. It's only from the heights that valleys look bleak. When you arrive down here, life is changed only as to exteriors. I've found rare philosophers and students in water-front inns, and the steerage and brothels.

* * *

"Contact with humanity in the mass, away from refinements, convinces me that more governments will fall, bloodshed will follow and the civilization we know will foam into utter chaos. Russia has an idea in advance of the world, but it's still faulty. Out of it will bubble something, for, after all, it is the crucible.

* * *

"In tossing off the shackles, I found a happiness I never knew. Of course, there are dark hours but I had them in the more regulated life. I never want to return to the cut-and-dried existence, anyway. It may be said, it will be different when money runs out. But I've learned to exist on $3 a week and there's always panhandling. If everybody had my viewpoint, the world would stagnate, of course. But that will never be. There always will be workers, futile people who flutter madly, imagining themselves important, only to find some of the slick bankers and investment house rascals have pu[illegible]em on the hummer.

* * *

"So I'll share my lot with the drones. They give nothing, expect nothing. I'm cloyed with the go-getters. If I finish in an alms house, no one will know me. I would rather be there than among the I-knew-him-whens, with their pitying gestures. And, to say the least, I'll have some grand memories. And that's about all any of us get out of this comedy called life."
